LEADERS IN AREA ELATED AT LOW COST

Directors Indicate $15 Per Acre Foot Probable Fee For Irrigation Water

Considerable activity in Orange county regarding joining the MWD is expected to be launched immediately following the announcement of the MWD board. It was apparent that the MWD board did not definitely fix the price of the water at $15 an acre foot, which amounts to a rate of 3.45 cents per 100 cubic feet, but gave the figure as its best judgment at this time.

30,000 ATTEND FAIR OPENING

POMONA, Sept. 19.—With 30,000 people including some 15,000 school children from all parts of Southern California in attendance, the 15th annual Los Angeles county fair at Pomona threw open its gates Friday to the largest opening day attendance in its history. As is customary at the county fair there were no elaborate opening day ceremonies. The bursting of bombs dropped from soaring airplanes, the blare of trumpets and the music from massed bands heralded the inauguration of the huge agricultural and industrial exposition.

For the adults the interest centered in the judging which started in the livestock, the poultry, arts, household arts and other departments. As the throngs entered the nine entrance gates scattered throughout the 200-acre exposition park they quickly dispersed to the various departments which claimed their interest. Every one of the score of major divisions was soon crowded with eager sightseers.

Saturday, designated as governor's day, was scheduled to be one of the big days of the exposition. In addition to the presence of Governor Merriam, many other high state and county officials were expected to be on hand. The governor's dinner, an annual event in connection with the fair, was set for 7 o'clock at Mountain Meadows Country club, near the fair grounds.

To a greater degree than ever before the fair this year presents a remarkable cross section of the agricultural and industrial achievements of the Southland. Throughout the remainder of days through Sunday, Oct. 4, there has been prepared a program of special events and exceptional features so varied and so interesting as to satisfy the most critical taste. In addition to the racing every afternoon there is the brilliant horse show every evening for the first nine nights.

GALE SPENDS ITS FURY ON EAST COAST

Damage by Storm Will Run Into Millions; Many Ships Missing

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(UP)—The year's worst hurricane swirling out to sea today after spending its fury against the eastern seaboard and leaving in its wake at least 11 dead, property damage running into millions of dollars and disrupted shipping and communications.

A higher pressure area rolling down from the Great Lakes region forced the hurricane, which had lashed the coasts of the Carolinas, Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and New York, to swing northward, sparing most of New England.

At 10:45 a. m., E.D.T., the local weather bureau estimated that the storm was centered east of Nantucket off the Massachusetts coast.

South of the storm, the skies had cleared. The sun was shining over ravaged areas.

Because of advance warning from the government weather service, there was comparatively little loss of life.

FLOOD DAMAGE AT $2,000,000

BALLINGER, Texas, Sept. 19.—(UP)—More than 2,000 persons were homeless today and property damage was estimated at $2,000,000 as the rising flood waters of the Colorado river and its tributaries moved downstream toward Austin, the state capital.

ishing boat Long Island which foundered in Delaware Bay yesterday. The coast guard originally had listed as lost most of the Long Island's crew of 42. But early today, 32 of the crew were found alive on a barge inside Delaware breakwater. Three had made shore yesterday. The seven others, including the skipper, perished.

Three persons were killed in the Philadelphia area as result of the storm and one drowned off Atlantic City.

Shipping suffered hardest from the blow. Scores of small craft were destroyed along the 1000 miles of coast hit by the storm. Many persons aboard small vessels had been reported missing, but today all these had turned up alive. Two youths in a rowboat feared lost in Jamaica Bay, near New York, were found by police today, marooned in an anchored cabin cruiser. Their rowboat had sunk.

Rescue Four Men
Harbor police at New Haven, Conn., rescued four men from a small schooner which foundered a half mile off shore.

The tail-end of the hurricane passed over Montauk Point, at the tip of Long Island early today. Montauk Point had been cut off from telephone communication with New York soon after midnight but before daybreak the lines were restored.

From Montauk Point, the hurricane appeared to veer farther east. Coast guardsmen and seamen risking their lives and vessels in a wild sea to save others, searched vainly for several freighters, barges and yachts lost in the turmoil.

The center of the giant storm, described by the weather bureau as greater in extent than any other hurricane ever mapped, passed a few miles at sea off New York during the night.

A weather bureau bulletin at 4 a. m. said the center of the storm then was approximately 150 miles south of Block Island, at the ocean end of Long Island sound, and was moving east-northeast.

90-Mile Wind
Wind velocities near the vortex remained at nearly 90 miles an hour but the fringes of the storm lost force gradually and weather forecasters predicted that by tonight the worst gales would be swung eastward away from the rest of the New England coast.

Shipping was warned and took heed, by the disaster that befell mariners farther south who took chances yesterday. The sea lanes in the path of the storm were virtually empty.

Most of the hurricane's toll of life was taken at sea. Roaring up the coastline from South Carolina, where it first curved in from the ocean, the wind vented its greatest force on the coastal shipping that even in fair weather hugs the shore.

Scores of villages and cities in South Carolina, Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and New York were buffeted by the wind, flooded by unprecedented high tides, drenched by hours of blinding rain, but only one life was lost ashore.

In Delaware was the 500-ton auxiliary fishing schooner Long Island was blown and beaten to pieces in waves as high as a five-story building, and eight of her crew of 45 were missing.

New Haven, Conn., harbor police searched vainly for four men whom persons ashore saw struggling in Long Island sound after their small sloop capsized. Not even the boat could be found.

Cabin Cruiser Founders
Another man drowned when a 40-foot cabin cruiser foundered off Atlantic City, a Negro WPA worker was swept off a barge drifted near Chincoteague, N. C., and a telephone line foreman was electrocuted on emergency duty.

Fifty-two other Negroes were aboard the barge from which the WPA worker was lost and another blown adrift with it. The gravest fear was felt for their safety.

Ashore, along a thousand miles of coast, the wind blew the ocean up to and into city streets, over highways, and far up fresh water rivers that in turn backed over their banks with enormous damage. Three thousand coast guardsmen, several regiments of National Guardsmen, Red Cross disaster corps, and state authorities co-operated to prevent loss of life on land but were unable to halt the property loss.

Today the fishermen, merchants and other residents of North Carolina and Virginia cities and villages began removing tangled masses of fallen trees, sign boards and electric lines, all plastered with mud and sand, from their streets. The storm was past there.

Gale Sweeps North
But to the north the hurricane still blew, wreaking the same damage.

Mountainous seas beat over the beaches at Rehoboth Beach, Del., Ocean City, Md., Atlantic City, N. J., and all the resorts on Long Island's south shore, and past Montauk Point to the Cape Cod canal.

Six small buildings were washed off the beach at Ocean City. The town's principal streets and the causeway that separates the resort from the mainland were flooded. A block-long section of the boardwalk was washed to sea.

The waves and an all-day, blinding rain flooded Atlantic City streets, the wind shattered windows, unroofed a few buildings, broke trees and intermittently interrupted telephone and electric power service. WPA Director George R. Swinton mobilized 5000 men to clear away debris today in the resort city and suburban villages.

Spectacularly but without great damage, the tempest struck the largest city in the country, New York. The maximum wind velocity in Manhattan was 45 miles an hour, but at Long Island, in Westchester county, and in nearby New Jersey, where the city's millionaires have their estates, coast guard stations and boatmen reported true.

STATE HAS ELABORATE FAIR EXHIBIT

The great seal of California on a classical background composed of agricultural products displayed in ornate baskets and bowls, is the impressive subject for a striking entry by the state department of agriculture at Los Angeles County Fair which opened Friday in Pomona and continues through October 4. The exhibit is designed to show the extent of state's vast agricultural industry and the objective is accomplished in an impressive manner.

hurricane winds—85 and 90 miles an hour.

Rushing Surf

Surf that did not rise in breakers as it does on moderately windy days, but raced inland like tide at exaggerated speed, poured in as far as 200 feet above normal high water marks on Jones and Fire Island beaches. The broad beamed Staten Island ferries rolled like destroyers on their sheltered trips across New York harbor.

While the winds in the hurricane's van raised tides far past normal heights, in its wake, the wind in the opposite direction created unequaled low tides. In Carolina and Virginia estuaries today oystermen walked on the vacated ocean bed gathering an oyster harvest in bushel baskets and sacks.

Thousands of motor cars stalled at the New York City rush hour last night and the gusty Manhattan canyons were filled past dark with hooting masses of motorists that traffic policemen could not unsnarl.

Connecticut Hit
Connecticut points on Long Island Sound suffered almost equally with ports on the ocean. Long Island's almost flat expanse impeded the wind not at all.

Coast guardsmen received reports that nearly 100 small boats had foundered or dragged anchors and been smashed on beaches in the sound.

The coast guard was unable to compile an accurate list of the number of rescues it effected during the day and night, nor could it determine the fate of 15 or more vessels—some of them large freighters—known to have been in the storm area and unreported since it passed.

Most of them, Lieut. R. L. Burke of the Cape May, N. J., station said, probably would be found safe.

ollers, waterfronters and wipers' associations. Operators of steam schooners said six maritime unions had until Sept. 25 to reply to demands that issues in dispute in the negotiations be arbitrated.

The dispute between the owners and the sailors' union reached the point of a stalemate after an exchange of letters in which each side refused to retreat from its demands. Shipowners are expected to meet with the licensed groups—masters, mates and pilots association, the marine engineers and American radio telegraphists association.

In the customs house here continued the hearing of charges against Captain George Yardley, of the Dollar line luxury liner, President Hoover, whose departure for the Orient was delayed six days by a labor dispute.

Yardley is charged by members of the Hoover crew with violating maritime safety regulations.

KEN Murray SAYS:

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—This is the time of year when the children howl to register for classes, and college professors at Washington are telling the adults how to register for the polls.

In the past, a college education was always desirable, but nowadays if a boy only goes through the school of experience, it's full possible for him to become a man of letters. . . . Look at Postmaster Farley.

This is especially true of the youth who seeks an important job with the government. . . . All he needs is a good working knowledge of the alphabet.

P. S.—With all the campaigning to eliminate communism from our halls of learning this year, I suppose the next step will be to change the color of the Little Red Schoolhouse.

story of the fight to the finish which they were waging inside.

Sharp fighting was reported at Oviedo, held by rebels on the northern front. Loyalists dashed into the city on a daring sortie. They reached the center of the town there and captured the Church of Santa Catarina, killing the rebel defenders.

The loyalists surrounded the barracks at Oviedo in which the rebels were concentrated, and fighting continued. The sturdy Asturian miners, fighting for the rebel regime at Madrid, began a barrage of dynamite bombs against the Fascist insurgents there.

Rebel headquarters at Burgos claimed 2000 loyalists were captured near Llerena.

Americans clinging to their possessions and posts at Madrid began what is expected to be their final evacuation from the Spanish capital. The U. S. Quincy noted by at Alicante, a port on the southeastern coast of Spain, taking aboard 45 American refugees.

There are still 148 remaining in Madrid, including the embassy staff. U. S. Ambassador Claude Bowers, however, is at Saint-Jean de Luz on the Spanish-French border.

At Geneva, fears were expressed that the Madrid government would denounce to the League of Nations the alleged aid the Spanish rebels are purported to be receiving from certain foreign powers sympathetic to their Fascist program and bitterly opposed to the rebel regime now in power.

PEACE LOOMING IN STRIKE WAR

ized in its strike activities by peace officers, highway patrolmen and a citizen's draft army in an emergency move by Sheriff Carl Abbott.

Bitterness still persisted in union headquarters, however, and was aggravated by a raid on the home of George Kircher, chairman of the strike organization committee.

The raid was conducted by Col. Henry Sanborn, self-announced "co-ordinator" of police activities for three counties. Sanborn, San Rafael publisher of an anti-Communist weekly periodical, said he had seized documents and literature in Kircher's home which he hoped would result in prosecution of Kircher on "criminal syndicalism charges."

Charge Raid Plot
At the same time Joseph M. Casey, western representation of the American Federation of Labor who was sent to the Salinas area yesterday by President William Green, charged that back of a mobilization order which summoned deputized citizens was a plan to raid union headquarters during a scheduled meeting today.

It is planned that the citizen deputies raid the premises in the guise of a raid against Communist activities," Casey said.

Strikers did not picket yesterday and "hot" lettuce, conveyed by patrolmen, moved steadily from fields to shipping sheds where it was packed and made ready for shipment by strikebreakers.

Union leaders discouraged conspicuous public appearances of strikers in an effort to avert further possible street fighting and rioting which for two days brought hand-to-hand fighting and tear gas attacks on Salinas streets.

Col. Sanborn, a new figure in the controversy, was introduced at a meeting of 500 deputies ordered to report at the state armory by Sheriff Carl Abbott, Capt. Fred Hepple, Salinas city clerk, said the meeting had been called to impress upon the deputies the seriousness of the situation.

Virtual War
"This is virtual war," Hepple said as he presented Sanborn. "I am not interested in who wins the strike," said Col. Sanborn. "We are concerned with upholding the constitution of the United States and the state of California and to maintain protection."

The assembled municipal "army" decided its signal for mobilization in event of future emergency would be three blasts of the fire department whistle.

Strike leaders denied reports they had arranged a direct negotiation session with the Growers-Shippers association.

The association yesterday shipped 64 carloads of lettuce, much of which is reaching the over-price stage and threatening further huge losses in this "World's Salad Bowl". Lettuce prices throughout the state were rising. The Salinas-Watsonville district produces 90 per cent of the nation's supply of lettuce.

THREE HURT WHEN CAR, TRUCK CRASH

Three Santa Anas were injured, one seriously, when a sedan and a truck crashed at the intersection of Orange avenue and St. Gertrude streets at 1 p. m. today.

The truck driver, R. E. Louge, 1239 Orange avenue, sustained head injuries and severe lacerations as a result of the collision. He was rushed to Santa Ana Valley hospital. The car involved in the accident was operated by Mrs. Lottie Murphy, 1621 South Van Ness. Mrs. Murphy sustained cuts on her face, which were treated by officers B. A. Hershey and George Boyd, who investigated the collision. Mrs. Murphy's two-year-old daughter and another passenger in her car, Miss Opal Anderson, 1621 South Van Ness street, escaped injury.

Robert A. Smith, a passenger in the truck, suffered severe pavement burns. The truck, after skidding 35 feet from the point of the collision, turned over, throwing the occupants to the pavement.

consular representative, representing the workers, and Stuart Strathman, of Placentia, speaking for the growers and shippers.

The meeting, held in the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A., opened peacefully with Lucio, introduced by Burke, presenting the case of the Mexican agricultural workers. Members of the league, commenting later, expressed their belief that Lucio had presented his case both fairly and clearly.

Strathman then was invited to correct anything in Lucio's statement that he considered in error, it being explained that he had been invited there for that purpose.

Attorney Burke objected to Strathman being allowed to speak and the ensuing spirited discussion, in which members of the league insisted on hearing both sides of the question, resulting in a ruling by Mrs. J. D. Campbell, acting chairman, that Strathman be allowed to proceed.

Strathman then corrected several statements made by Lucio, and took his seat.

Burke again arose and launched an attack upon Strathman's statement, disputing several points. Strathman replied sharply, taking his turn at "correcting" Burke.

Burke had maintained that Strathman should not be permitted to speak, and that the workers were not receiving a fair "break" in the discussion, because Lucio lacked a command of English to match Strathman.

As the debate waxed, the calm was suddenly split by Bray, who, at some remark of Burke's, charged "that's a lie."

Burke made no move to resent the assertion, and the tension passed.

Sent to California as a special representative from Washington, D. C., to investigate employer-labor relations, with instructions to make a report of his survey, O. E. Mulliken, representing the United States Department of Agriculture, was an interested spectator. He made no comment.

have the castle as part of Death Valley national monument."

Scotty, munching avocado salad and sponge cake prepared by the Filipino cook with obvious disgust at such table delicacies, motioned the correspondent to Mrs. A. M. Johnson, kindly wife of Scotty's partner, former Chicago millionaire.

"Mabel will show you the big house," he said.

Returning to the desert mansion this week after a summer's absence, Mrs. Johnson already has begun preparations for the avalanche of visitors. Two Filipino houseboys and three workmen are making repairs and cleaning the luxurious home, a replica of an old Castilian castle.

"Visitors come in hordes during the winter," Mrs. Johnson said. "They'll be starting in a few days and we haven't got the place fixed up yet. It doesn't matter how bad the roads are; they still file in here in everything from Rolls-Royces to Austins."

During the winter season the owners employ a dozen young men and women to act as guides and guards.

"We used to have all young men here," Mrs. Johnson said, "but the girls, dressed in pretty frocks, make the visitors feel more comfortable."

"The trip through the 50 rooms of the castle and adjoining buildings takes a full hour. Furnishings, valued at $1,000,000, include many antiques, imported from Europe, retaining the old world atmosphere."

"Last year all the members of the Rockefeller family were our houseguests," the quiet hostess explained. "This year we expect Edsel Ford to spend a few days."

against the detentions which, he said, were forcible.

The United Press and Associated Press correspondents, covering the ceremony, were not permitted to approach within 400 yards.

There was an ugly situation for a time.

The Japanese army chieftains decided to demand the withdrawal of the Fengtai detachment of the 29th Chinese army, taking the attitude that the soldier's attack on the horse and the orderly was the fourth anti-Japanese incident since June.

Chinese troops surrounded the Chinese barracks, at the railway station, until negotiations were completed.

At 10 o'clock the Chinese garrison—120 men—marched out of the barracks to their drill grounds. There they faced 400 Japanese soldiers, machine guns employed before them.

Col. Hsu Chao-Lin of the Chinese army apologized to Col. Renya Mutaguchi, commandant of the Japanese embassy guard, in the presence of the Japanese and Chinese soldiers.

Col. Hsu ordered his men to move a mile from town, the evacuation to be complete by the formal hour of sundown, and agreed to move all Chinese soldiers from the vicinity soon.

"I heard a voice from behind that sound like Baker's saying, 'Pour it on that . . . He's the one that beat me.'"

"I had my left arm up trying to defend myself, but there was a pain at both sides beating me so much that my head and eyes hurt for several days. I couldn't even wear a hat, my head was so sore."

Brite said he heard no one call anything like "Hello boys, we're officers here to arrest you."

"The first thing I knew I was getting beaten," he said. "I yelled 'My God, Coke, can't you help me?' but there was no answer."

"One man said 'Grab his arm, I'll fix him' then they beat me until I didn't know nothing from then till we got up near home. That's when my senses began to come."

Remember No Shots
He said he did not remember hearing any shots and did not know the extent of the trouble until he asked Coke what had happened.

"I thought I had had a fight with Coke and I asked him 'what did you do to me?' He said 'I didn't do nothing. Then I said 'let's go to bed my head hurts.' He said 'we can't, there's three dead men down there.'"

Brite then detailed the course of flight through the Siskiyous to find old prospecting camp they had on the south slope of Sterling mountain where they remained nearly two weeks.

The Brite brothers surrendered to Davis Thursday afternoon upon advice of their mother, Martha.

COURT ACTION SEEN IF OIL REFINERY CONFERENCE FAILS

If a conference called for next Monday fails to produce a satisfactory solution of the problem, District Attorney W. F. Menton is prepared to institute injunction proceedings in superior court to rid Westminister of the sickening odor from oil refinery refuse, now drawing the ire of that community.

Menton made that announcement today as he prepared for the conference Monday with Ralph Gray, of the Gray Trucking company, Long Beach, who is said to be impounding quantities of the refinery waste matters in earthen reservoirs near Westminister.

Gray's purpose, it is understood, is to manufacture a bi-product from the waste matter, using the residue for the manufacture of a commercial fertilizer. He has acquired a 20-acre tract in that vicinity, and has been accumulating the refinery waste over a period of weeks.

Upon urgent complaints from Westminister residents that the odor from the Gray reservoirs is becoming unbearable, Menton was in Westminister yesterday, examining the situation there, and went Afterwards, a supper was served, the tables being decorated with hibiscus blossoms, huge "pine-apples" as centerpieces, and paper ships with "S.S. Mariner" heightening the nautical touch.

Arrangements were handled by Skipper and Mrs. Joseph H. Frechette, First Mate and Mrs. Arthur Littlejohn, Purser and Mrs. Frank Kibbey, and Logkeeper and Mrs. Rex Roush. ## Gov. Landon's War Scare Falls Flat; Forgot du Ponts!

Until recently Gov. Landon has very wisely refrained from the overstatements and exaggerations that have caused the public to lose confidence in his running mate, Col. Frank Knox, and his worthy national chairman, John D. M. Hamilton.

Although he has been only four years in public life, Gov. Landon's experience as Chief Executive of Kansas has taught him that the voters soon grow suspicious of candidates who engage in reckless and extreme statements.

But now Gov. Landon's advisers are worried over what Mr. Hamilton told news correspondents in Washington was an "August slump" in the Republican campaign. They are demanding more action. In his customary modest manner, Mr. Hamilton told the newsmen that "I sent him to Maine"—referring to Gov. Landon's visit there. Coming from another man that might seem like a very slighting reference to the Republican candidate.

In any event, the Republican strategists, alarmed at the way things are going, are urging Gov. Landon to "get rough" on President Roosevelt personally. Unfortunately, he seems inclined to yield to that advice.

Slightly Confused

The speech at Portland, Me., indicated that the Republican nominee is preparing to issue bloodcurdling war yells similar to the war cries being raised by the redoubtable Col. Knox.

For example, Gov. Landon went through a rather muddled mental process at Maine in an endeavor to show that President Roosevelt's policies are leading us to war. Said he:

"The trend against democracy must be stopped at once if the world is to escape a major catastrophe. I doubt if civilization can survive another war."

When Gov. Landon was uttering those words, his expenses in Maine were being paid in large part by the du Pont brothers, the greatest war lords in the history of America, and Mr. J. P. Morgan, whose firm has obtained somewhat of a reputation as a dealer in war loans.

If Gov. Landon really fears the effects of another war abroad, why doesn't he suggest that fact to his financial backers? The senate investigation committee revealed that the du Pont corporation, among its many operations, has an agreement with the largest firm of British munitions makers regarding the division of labor in Europe.

New League!

Very fortunately for himself, Gov. Landon's speech at Portland failed to cause the slightest tremor of excitement because the American people realize that it is ridiculous to charge President Roosevelt with endangering the country in foreign wars.

The American public merely yawned at Gov. Landon's war scare speech at Portland. He must do better than that if he wants action. The du Ponts own the Liberty League, and they love to form new organizations. Then why not—

THE DU PONT PEACE LEAGUE

(Committed to Gov. Landon)

Maine Goes Hell Bent

The sweeping Republican victory in Maine is impressive for many reasons.

It marks a repudiation of President Roosevelt's policies in the court of final opinion, by the people themselves.

It shows that the voter has lost confidence in the witch doctor methods of the New Deal and is looking toward the coming of Gov. Landon's practical liberalism in government.

Moreover, it answers a statement that has been passed around the country for a year or more, and which seems to be the controlling element in the New Deal campaign strategy, that "$4,800,000,000 can't be beat."

Well, Maine gave her judgment. Maine was paid for, but not bought.

Money collected by President Roosevelt from hidden taxes on the food and clothing of poor people was dumped into Maine on the most elaborate scale—on such projects as the "moonbeam venture" of harnessing the tides at Quoddy against the judgment of Government engineers.

How much money did the alphabetical bureaus and other New Deal spenders put into Maine? Grand total—$138,994,987.

But Maine could not be bought.

Everyone must realize that if $4,800,000,000 of the people's money can be distributed so as to win an election, then voting is no longer important. If you can't beat $4,800,000,000 in 1936 then the voters are not very likely to be able to beat ten billion, or fifteen billion in 1940 or 1944, and if the example is set now it is pretty sure to be repeated later on. Think that over if you prize democracy and value the importance of your ballot.

VOICE OF THE VOTER

Paul J. Mercier, 104 W. 45th St., bartender: "The brewery and liquor business in New York could use more men in different lines of its activities. Under Gov. Landon, these jobs would already have been filled. This is what Gov. Landon means when he advocates jobs in private industry instead of relief."

Miss Marie Nordstrom, 12 E. 97th St., New York actress: "I shall vote for Gov. Landon because I believe in his integrity, and ability. I believe he will give this country a government we can again be proud of as Americans."

Otto Heyne, Springfield, Mass., (Interviewed in Grand Central Aerialmail): "We have got to have a change. These half of it. They spend all the time and bills keep piling up. My wife and I will vote for Landon, you can be sure. So will my children."

And meanwhile, the Maine victory has given the Republican party new confidence, but no overconfidence. Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., Eastern Republican campaign manager, sounds the note for the intensive campaign for votes which will follow.

"Main has repudiated the New Deal," he said. "When the Governorship, which has been controlled for four years, and two seats in Congress are lost, it is unquestionably a major setback. Even the popular Gov. Brann was unable to stand up under the anti-New Deal deluge despite his persistent efforts to shake off its weight. The tremendous vote given the Republican candidates for Congress is the best indication of the real sentiment against the New Deal."

"Gov. Landon delivered the knockout blow, when he personally visited the State last Saturday. He showed that perhaps more than anyone else he understands the temper of the American people. He knows what they are thinking about."

"The Maine results will hearten Republicans and anti-New Dealers throughout the nation and will cause them to press forward with new zeal and effort toward the November election. Maine points the way over which a majority of the States will follow on Nov. 3."

NEW METHODS OF COOKERY TO BE SHOWN HERE

All roads will lead to the Legion hall, beginning next Wednesday when the Happy Kitchen cooking school sponsored by the Register will open promptly at 2 o'clock, with Miss Jane Kruse, nationally known home economist, in charge.

Miss Kruse who is well known for the many attractive recipes and menus she has developed, will bring to Santa Ana women a number of up-to-the-minute ideas for smart entertaining during the fall season, party plans that are sparkling with cleverness and originality, yet are not too expensive for the moderate budget. However, she will spend much of her time on the more prosaic, every-day meals, and will explain and demonstrate practical helps for simplifying meal preparation, with delicious and economical recipes, balanced menus, and many valuable suggestions.

Miss Kruse will discuss such new methods of cookery, as the cooking of vegetables without water, low temperature roasting and baking for oven-cooking of foods, preparation of dainty yet inexpensive desserts, and will explain these new short-cuts in meal preparation in a manner that will make every woman appreciate their simplicity and practical application in her own work.

Fashions in foods change just as do fashions in dress, houses, or being toward the simple, healthful yet appetizing menu, with not a great deal of heavy, elaborate food. Miss Kruse will give the basic principles to remember in planning these simpler, more attractive meals, considering always the moderate budget, and the needs of the family. She will also discuss such questions as special diets for underweight children, avoiding meat in fall and winter diets, balancing of meals from a health standpoint, and many other subjects of paramount importance to home makers everywhere.

In addition to these informative and worth while discussions, there will be many valuable prizes given away each day, and from every indication this cooking school will be the finest ever held in Santa Ana. It will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, from 2 to 4 p. m.

30 APPEAR IN CITY COURT ON SPEED CHARGES

Marie L. Steele, daughter of the well-known barber, Joe Steele, 2525 North Park boulevard, led a parade of 30 speeders who appeared in Santa Ana city court yesterday.

Appearance of the 30 speeders, all of whom pleaded guilty, set an all-time "high" for speeding charges handled in city court in any one day.

Miss Steele was fined $20 by Acting City Judge John Landell after pleading guilty to traveling 60 miles per hour in the 25-mile zone on Main street at First street, September 6, at 2:45 a. m. She was ticketed by Motorcycle Officer George Boyd.

Illness in the family resulted in dismissal of speeding charges against T. J. Flanagan, Huntington Beach, and Samuel Krown, Los Angeles, "in furtherance of justice."

Twenty-seven other speeders paying fines were G. H. Braden Jr., Route 4, Box 585, Santa Ana, $5; Richard Baga, Corona, $5; Emil Drake, Garden Grove, $5; Jacinto Flores, 2002 West Fifth, Santa Ana, $5; Thelma Haines, Route 1, Box 33, Costa Mesa, $5; Ishmael Mendoza, Olive, $10; Stanley Hill, Valencia hotel, Anaheim, $5; William Joor, $5; Fred Koch, San Diego, $5; Cleo Maxwell, North Hollywood, $5; Percy Ross, Los Angeles, $5; Joe Symington, 2104 Halladay, Santa Ana, $5; Edward Sine, Costa Mesa, $5; Savino Vivamonte, 904 Stafford, Santa Ana, $5; Phillip Wangler, Route 2, Box 155, Santa Ana, $5; William T. ## News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—President Roosevelt is understood to have devoted some thought lately to getting his defeated Republican friend, Senator Couzens, into a big New Deal job. Casual consideration, at least, is known to have been given by some of Couzens' friends toward boosting the straight-shooting Michigan senator with $30,000,000 and a will of his own into the treasury secretaryship. This is the job he would fit best, but it is, of course, now amply occupied.

Mr. Morgenthau, who holds it, is known to be inclined to keep on holding it. He would be moved only by a request from his friend and boss. If invited to take anything else, he would choose the Paris ambassadorship, but that, too has just been filled. The state department earnestly denies rumors that the Bullitt appointment to Paris was merely a temporary arrangement to meet the present peculiar French situation.

If the wheels which are moving in these directions slip the track, Couzens might be offered the budget directorship. Acting Budget Director Bell will probably be moved into the 15 year job of comptroller general sooner or later.

Note—Couzens is highly regarded inside New Deal circles for his independence. He was in the wrong pond in the Senate, his nature and experience being better suited to executive activities. The New Dealers seem to think his appointment to any big post would be a political ten-strike for Mr. Roosevelt.

GETTING READY—The official detail that creation of a European naval squadron means anything was entirely of the diplomatic variety.

Ten days ago, Mr. Roosevelt scoffed at the suggestion of such a move. A week ago, Navy Secretary Swanson denied the navy had thought of it. Three days ago, it was done.

What happened in the meantime to change official minds was the war threat by Hitler against the Russians and the profound excitement it caused in Moscow. Officials here considered the resultant situation far more serious than the public at large. They thought there was a distinct possibility of a clash between Russian and Germany, not immediately, perhaps, but within the near future.

Thus the new European naval squadron was created with a view to the possibility that it might have to remove American nationals some time soon from trouble zones other than those in Spain. At the same time, authorities here wisely wanted to avoid starting a war scare, so they advertised it as a routine move.

EFFICIENCY—In a secondary way, it was one, and a good one. What it will do technically is to permit the new admiral to move his ships in European waters swiftly. He will not have to go through all the rigamarole of getting orders from Washington every time a coast guard cutter wants to turn around. Also, he will furnish central control on the job to keep the ships out of such trouble as the destroyer Kane unfortunately encountered from the presumably mysterious air bomber.

Note—The squadron creation was an inside victory for commissioned officers of the navy. They have been pulling for a European squadron for a long time. It affords them new cruising waters and what they call "new social education" in European ports.

TONAL QUALITY—Mr. Roosevelt has been in good humor lately. His banter with newspapermen at press conferences has revealed his personal campaign attitude better than it has been expressed otherwise. Excerpts from the last one can be paraphrased in the proper tone, something like this:

Campaign plans Well, to be frank, he wants to make a trip to the Pacific coast. It has gone as far as arranging a schedule to find out how many days it would take out and back, but he doesn't know. He will do it if he can. He doesn't want to start a war scare, but the way the European situation is right now, it would not do for him to be gone from Washington longer than four days in a row. What the situation will be 10 days hence, he doesn't know. Sea trip in December to Pan American conference? No, but he will tell you what he probably will do after November 3. Take a sea trip of 10 days or two weeks going fishing in some of those spots he overlooked previously in the Gulf of Mexico.

Will the President do that regardless of what happens November 3? No comment, except that he is a good guesser. He is such a good political guesser, he may syndicate himself after election. He doesn't want to brag, but he thinks he is pretty good. In the five Maine contests, his estimates were very close on three, off a little on one and away off on another, a congressional contest. That reminds him about Albany, 1932. Some of the political experts got up a pool on the election and he thinks everybody put $5 in the hat, and "mind they were all experts," but he won the pool. (Heavy laughter.)

Any comment about Lloyds offering 5 to 3 on his election? (Pause and then a response in an amazed tone of voice.) Lloyds did that! (An assurance came from the crowd that it was true.) Well, (another pause.) Probably any answer to that would be construed as a bid for British support. (Laughter. Exit.)

BANKERS TOLD OF LECTURE SERIES

Plans for a series of lectures and classes based upon legal phases of banking were discussed Thursday night at the regular meeting of the Orange county chapter, American Institute of Banking. The session was held at Hughes cafe, Fullerton.

J. B. Tucker, Santa Ana attorney, outlined the course in negotiable instruments which he is to offer as a part of the winter institute session. R. Carson Smith, who will present a course in securities, explained the type of work to be conducted in his classes. The institute will be held on consecutive Thursdays at the Frances Willard Junior High school, Santa Ana.

Guests present at the meeting last night included Wilson Bates, president of the Los Angeles chapter, A. L. B., and Lee June, president of the Harbor chapter. June extended an invitation to the Orange county bankers to join with his chapter in an open forum to be conducted this winter.

The service will be at 11 o'clock. Copies of the Laymen's league publication, "Finding a Faith to Live By," will be presented to all who attend.

On Wednesday evening Miss Katherine Jeffries, case worker on the staff of the county welfare department, will speak on "Facing the Indigent's Problem." The public is invited.

There is a definite swing toward tougher football schedules among major colleges.

It has been demonstrated that it does not pay to warm up against soft ones. The shock is too severe when the varsity bumps into the real article.

Last season's keen observer and authority as Bernie Bierman of Minnesota gave Ohio State's comparatively easy early season set-up as one of the principal reasons for the Buckeyes' defeat at the hands of Notre Dame.

Coaches have reached the conclusion that it is just as well to give their creations robust tests right from the start.

The result is terrific encounters on the campaign's opening Saturday afternoon, Sept. 26, Mighty Minnesota, unbeaten at three years, travels to Seattle that day to combat Washington in a game likely to have as much bearing on the mythical national championship as any other staged between then and early December.

Both Bierman and Jimmy Phelan of the Huskies will know just where they stand after that one.

On that same afternoon, and while the major baseball leagues are winding up their seasons, Colgate goes to Durham to engage Duke, Rice journeys to Baton Rouge to grapple with Louisiana State, Mississippi squares off with Tulane in New Orleans, Oregon State has it out with Southern California in Los Angeles, Stanford battles Santa Clara at Stanford, and Tulsa deploys against Major "Biff" Jones' Oklahoma squad at Norman. Any of these contests would do quite well as "big" games anywhere in the land and much later in the grind.

CROWDED HOURS

Big timers aren't even waiting for the following Saturday, Oct. 3, when the World Series will be on, to get back into the thick of things. Certainly Rice and Mississippi aren't wasting any time. Only six days after combating Louisiana State, Rice takes the field against Duquesne in a night game in Pittsburgh. And the array from Old Miss' with its remarkable halfback, Ray Hapke, comes to grips with Temple in Philadelphia. That is what I call sandwiching in long trips between real battles.

The schedule for Oct. 3 reads like one for the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day. On that afternoon, we find Carnegie Tech opening the Notre Dame season at South Bend, Cornell under the capable Carl Snively taking on Yale, New York University in Columbus for a scrap with Ohio State, Iowa at Northwestern, Michigan State at Michigan, St. Mary's at California, Auburn at Tulane, Tennessee at North Carolina, Lafayette at Chicago, Marquette at Wisconsin, Oregon at Southern California, Washington State at Stanford, Arkansas at Texas Christian, Baylor at Centenary, and Louisiana State running its best plays against Texas at Austin.

Yes, the feather schedule is past. Even Army, which formerly liked to pace the Cadets, has stiffened up a bit.

Lou Little gradually has added to the Columbia bookings until the Lion this fall plays Maine, Army, Virginia Military Institute, Michigan, Cornell, Dartmouth, Syracuse and Stanford.

The schedules of Minnesota, Fordham, Pittsburgh, and Carnegie Tech will do until harder ones come along.

TIGERS PICK SPOTS

Opening with Washington, Minnesota tackles Nebraska, Michigan, Purdue, Northwestern, Iowa, Texas at Austin and Wisconsin. Fordham is paired with Franklin and Marshall, Southern Methodist, Wayneburg, St. Mary's, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Georgia and New York University.

Pittsburgh is to meet Ohio Wesleyan, West Virginia, Ohio State, Duquesne, Notre Dame, Fordham, Penn State, Nebraska, and Carnegie Tech.

Starting with Notre Dame, Carnegie Tech takes on Michigan State, Temple, Holy Cross, Purdue, Duquesne, and Pittsburgh. Princeton is one of the few remaining major institutions which obviously still tries to pick its spots. It is for this reason that Fritz Crisler perhaps has received less credit than he was entitled to for the fine job he has done at Old Nassau.

It was a shame to see the last two or three Princeton classes be graduated with so little real football under their belts.

Princeton should get into the swing of things. Schedules are taken into consideration nowadays when laurels are distributed.

BRITAIN'S GRID AGES GET ONLY PAPER BOY PAY

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(London Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Sept. 19.—A friendly warning to American parents: Don't raise your sons to play professional football in England.

If you do, they'll never be able to return home some dark, rainy night and throw a bag of gold on the table just as the cruel square is about to foreclose the mortgage on the old homestead and send you out into the cold world. In fact, if you have a son playing football in England you'll be lucky if he doesn't write you once a week and try to put the old "bite" on you, as Oxford purists have it, for $5.

English football players are the most underpaid athletes in the world. Under a law they cannot be paid a salary of more than eight pounds weekly. This is the absolute top price and should a generous club owner violate the ruling and add another five dollars to a star's weekly pay check, his franchise would be taken away and the playing grounds closed forever.

The niggardliness of the salaries is even more amazing when one realizes what a tremendous money-maker football is over here. Our baseball crowds are as nothing to the throngs which, twice weekly, jam stadiums for the sport. At the opening of the season a few weeks back, more than 4,000,000 people paid to see the sport launch its "26-27" campaign of eight months. The major interest is centered in the play of teams in the first, second, and third north and third south divisions, which correspond to our major leagues. The average is 22 teams to a division, which means 44 games a week. Crowds at these games range from 10,000 when weaker clubs are matched to 80,000 when top eleven clash.

But the players get none of the money which rolls in, not even the brightest stars. Arsenal club of London and its famed performer, Alex James, offer a fine example of how things work. Arsenal plays in a million-dollar stadium and pays as much as $100,000 for a player if he wants to launch his "26-27" campaign of eight months. The major interest is centered in the play of teams in the first, second, and third north and third south divisions, which correspond to our major leagues. The average is 22 teams to a division, which means 44 games a week. Crowds at these games range from 10,000 when weaker clubs are matched to 80,000 when top eleven clash.

For this eight pounds a week, James plays two games of bruising football. The sport requires such perfect physical condition that players cannot expect to have more than eight or nine years in top company. They usually are through as headliners when they're about 30. Then what? They can't retire because even a most frugal man would have difficulty saving much out of eight pounds a week. A few are able to land jobs as coaches, newspaper commentators and talent scouts, but the majority of them go behind the bar in a pub or return to manual labor.

No one has been able to give me a sensible explanation for the poor pay of the footballers. Some say it's because football is such a team game that the presence of high-salaried stars would ruin it.

COVELLI GETS LUCKY DRAW WITH 'BABY'

Ruffing Yankee Choice to Open Series

When batteries for the opening game of the 1936 world series are announced, Charles Herbert (Red) Ruffing will mount the hill for the New York Yankees, according to present indications. The big right-hander, 32 years old, is having his best year with the Ruppert Rifles since 1932, when he bagged 18 and lost 7, won the only series game he pitched against the Chicago Cubs, and led the American League in strikeouts with 190.

OILERS SMASH FREDRICKS 18-0

Huntington Beach and San Bernardino will open their series for the Southern California night ball championship at San Bernardino next Tuesday night, according to arrangements completed today.

The second and third games also will be held in San Bernardino, Sept. 24 and Sept. 29, but the fourth will go to Huntington Beach Oct. 2.

Manager Joe Rodgers also completed negotiations today for his Oilers to invade Visalia for games next Friday and Saturday night.

The Oilers turned on the heat at home last night and buried Fredrick's Market, 18-0, under an avalanche of rousing base hits.

The Hollywood club claimed the Southern California title by virtue of a victory in the recent Examiner tournament. Louie Neva hit a triple and two doubles in the assault, and turned in two remarkable catches in the outfield.

"Chico" Sabella hurled four-hit ball for the Oilers.

The score:

SAN BERNARDINO NEW INLAND CHAMPION

San Bernardino won the American league championship last night, defeating the Covina Corsairs 8 to 5 in the seventh game of the series at San Bernardino diamond before a crowd of more than 2500 fans.

Wayne Watson's home run in the seventh inning with the bases loaded clinched the title for the Oilers, although they had previously put on a three-run rally in the third frame.

ELIMINATE 55 FROM SOUTHWEST TENNIS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—(UP)—Fifty-five players who survived first elimination rounds will battle for 32 positions in the championship bracket of the Pacific Southwest men's singles matches at the Los Angeles Tennis club today.

In the opening day of play, 109 aspirants to the crown held by red-haired Donald Budge of Oakland, reduced their ranks on the side courts while seeded American and foreign stars favored a fair-sized gallery with exhibitions.

At the end of the matches this afternoon, the title fight of 64 entries will be filled, with championship play scheduled to begin tomorrow. The top 32 positions were chosen by invitation.

Although Santa Ana reeled off several first downs it never threatened again during the half except when Len Stafford dashed from his own 10 to the touchdown line on a 20-yard drive. However, the Saints put on one drive from their 40 to Orange's 23 in the third period before Musick's fumble gave the ball to the Panthers.

The second touchdown march was mid-season stuff, and climaxed a march of 63 yards. Ambling back to the Saints 37, Stafford passed to Patterson for 12. Patterson ran right end for 5, Stafford passed to Patterson again for a first down on Orange's 35. Musick hit center for 5. Then

Len Stafford Leads Saints In 12-0 Win Over Orange Eleven

BY EDDIE WEST

Inglewood here next Friday but came one of those "Southern Methodist" laterals. Stafford passed over the line about five yards to the present Santa Ana and can speculate over a Santa football team that (1) moved down Orange, 12-0; (2) blocked with unexpected early season finesse; (3) came up with reserve strength that was absent last year, and (4) flashed a left halfback named Leonard Stafford who made both touchdowns as well as a 90-yard run for another that was discounted because a "sinning Saint" was offside.

"There were rough spots, of course," mused Coach Bill Foote, "but on the whole I was satisfied. We are deeper at every position than last season. I liked the way our ends held up under fire, especially Mittsuo Nitta. Al Patterson, our new halfback, looked like he would fit right into the scheme of things, too. Beginning Monday we'll start laying plans for tricky Dick Arnett of Inglewood. We have an old score to settle with him."

Coach Foote referred to the game for the Southern California prep championship in 1932, when Inglewood, led by Theron Keller, turned back the Saints, 14-0.

Santa Ana made touchdowns at Orange in the first and fourth periods. Stafford's sensation run that was disallowed came in the third quarter. He broke through the middle on a spinner, with Captain Dwight Nott ahead. Nott took out one of the secondary and Stafford outran the rest of the pack. But Head Lineman John Mitchell of Garden Grove had blown his whistle as soon as the play began and the game's "big moment" was unceremoniously stricken from the record.

A fumble by Rummels, Orange quarterback, put Santa Ana in scoring position in the first four minutes of the conflict.

Bill Musick kicked out of bounds on Orange's 23 yard line and Rummels fumbled a pass from center. Bill Milligan, the Saints' 210-pound left tackle, pushed through and fell on the ball on the 18.

Nott circled his left end for 9 yards and Stafford ran the other way for a touchdown, another 9-yard jaunt. He scored stung up. A low pass from center thwarted any attempt for the extra point. But Musick would have been lucky to make it anyhow for there are no goal posts at Poly field yet so the Saints haven't practiced the art of goal-kicking.

Although Santa Ana reeled off several first downs it never threatened again during the half except when Len Stafford dashed from his own 10 to the touchdown line on a 20-yard drive. ## SANDY-HAIRED SCOT NEAR U. S. AMATEUR TITLE

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(UP)—Jock McLean, sandy-haired Scotsman, held a lead of 3 up over Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati at the end of 27 holes today in their U. S. amateur golf championship battle.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(UP)—Winning the last two holes, 25-year-old Jock McLean of Scotland, was two up over Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati today at the end of the morning round of their 36-hole battle for the U. S. Amateur golf title.

The young Scot whiskey salesman, who never had led up to the 17th hole, won the last two of the round with birdies to hold a commanding lead at the half-way point.

Fischer clearly was in command through the tenth hole, where he was two up, but McLean, by spectacular saving halves, on the 11th and 12th, began his bid.

Fischer, a 24-year-old university of Cincinnati law student, started losing his head on the 13th. Here, he hooked his drive into the rough and played his two-iron second sloppily, hitting some leaves and dropping into the bank of a trap, scoring a six.

On the next hole, Jock again was the winner, squaring the issue for the second time in the match. McLean made a great recovery from the top of a mound to reach the edge of the green and go down with a par four.

Fischer relinquished a stroke to par by over-running the green with his second and looking up like a dub on a baby pitch shot.

The next two holes were halved. And on the 17th Jock took the lead for the first time with a conceded birdie four and made his mark in two holes with a deuce on the 18th.

Play was held under almost ideal conditions—remarkably good in the light of yesterday's downpour and high wind. A crowd of approximately 1500 saw the start of the match and it had swelled to nearly 1500 by the time the round was over.

A man who came within an ace of beating Dave Levin, and a young fellow who was sent to the hospital when he missed a flying tackle at this same Levin, meet Monday night at the Orange County Athletic club.

The original mat villain, "Dirty" Dick Davis and Baron Ginsberg, suave aristocrat of the bone-bending art, meet for the villain championship. They tangle in the first match of the evening.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—(UP)—Plans for construction of a $2,000,000 horse racing plant between Los Angeles and Santa Monica by the Hollywood Turf club yesterday were approved by the city planning commission.

A majority of residents in the area expressed their approval, declaring the venture would add business. Douglas Aircraft corporation, located a half-mile from the proposed site, pointed out, however, that test planes flying over the track might frighten the horses.

SEATTLE, Sept. 19.—(UP)—Portland last night won the right to play either Oakland or San Diego for the 1936 Pacific Coast league pennant by defeating Seattle 13-3. It was the Beavers' fourth consecutive win over the Indians, and finished the season in Seattle.

Beaver batters remained quiet until the fourth when they bounced the ball to all corners of the lot to score seven runs. They blasted out three more in the fifth and finished the encounter with three in the ninth.

Oakland and San Diego did not play last night.

Lionettes To Enter National Loop

The trouble signal that was hoisted at Orange over girls' baseball was hauled down today.

The Orange night ball commission has invited the Orange Lions club to enter the Orange Lionettes in the forthcoming National Girls' Night league, and indications are that the offer will be accepted.

For a time it appeared that there might be two "all-star" clubs in Orange next summer, one playing independent ball, the other representing the community in the National league's recently organized wheel which in 1937 will operate along lines similar to the men's chain.

LEAGUE HONORS LOU GEHRIG AT 1800TH GAME

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(UP)—Captain Lou Gehrig, the iron man of the New York Yankees, has another of his periodical days of glory today when he takes the field to compete in his 1800th consecutive ball game. The American league champions meet the Washington Senators.

An elaborate scroll, symbolic of the event and the first official recognition by the American league of its stellar first baseman, was to be presented to Gehrig. He has appeared in every game the Yankees have played since June 1, 1925.

Gehrig also may try to break his best home-run mark which was set in 1934 with 49 circuit blows. He has hit home runs 45 times already this season, with 9 games left to play.

These 1936 Yankees, with the pennant safely clinched long since, now want to set records to keep pace with their first baseman. They have won 96 games, they want to win 100. They want to have five of their players drive in 100 runs or more. Gehrig, Dickey, Lazzeri and DiMaggio already are in the century circle but Selkirk has batted in 93 runs and has two more to go before the club establishes a mark for both leagues to shoot at. The Yankees want to win the pennant by more than 19 games so they can pass the 1927 Yankee record which also is an American league mark. At present they are ahead by 18 1/2 games.

Every team in the National and American leagues is scheduled for today with the exception of the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs. The Cubs and Cards put on a close battle yesterday in the second place war and the Chicago players came through with a 3-0 victory to supplant the St. Louis team as runners-up to the Giants. Warneke hurled his 15th win of the year, allowing but three hits. The Cubs scored all their runs in the third.

7000 SEE S. A. FAIL TO SCORE FROM ONE FOOT

Seven thousand or more persons, representing perhaps the largest crowd that ever saw a Santa Ana football team in action, saw Pasadena's junior college eleven dump the Dons, 12 to 7, in what was nothing more than a game of "give-a-way" in the historic Rose Bowl last night.

With five minutes left to play, Santa Ana had a first down on Pasadena's one-foot line but failed to score when an illy-called end run was thrown for a five-yard loss and a forward pass was intercepted.

Bulldog Passes Click

Here's what happened:
(1) Pasadena scored on a pass with less than a minute left in the first half, but failed to add the extra point.

(2) Santa Ana went out in front, 7-6, in the third quarter, when Co-Captain Al Titensor intercepted a lateral pass and rammed 82 yards for a touchdown.

(3) Pasadena regained the lead in the third period on a touchdown pass.

All these were give-a-way points all predicated on faulty defense, more or less to be expected this early in the campaign.

And then came the belated Don drive to the 2-yard line, a penalty on Pasadena that took the ball one foot from victory. The Saturday Morning Quarterbacks' association thought any kind of a line plunge could have netted a winning touchdown. But Joe Herbert, the Dons' quarterback, thought otherwise. An end run around the short-side by Lehnhardt was spiced for a loss, and on the next play Herbert's pass was intercepted.

Pasadena's first touchdown came after John McDonough intercepted John Lehnhardt's pass on the Don 20 yard line, with one minute of the first half remaining. That, too, was questionable quarterbacking. Marvin Wright cracked over tackle for three and on the next play Lehnhardt faded back and fired a payoff pass to Bill McElroy, Pasadena end, who was all by himself in the corner of the field. O'Laughlin failed to convert by inches.

The Dons went into the lead early in the third quarter on Titensor's long run. He intercepted Granville Lansdell's lateral pass, intended for Wright, and galloped unmolested 82 yards for the Dons' only score. Herbert passed to MacBeall for the extra point.

Joy Is Short-Lived

Santa Ana's happiness lasted only five minutes. First Lansdell returned Herbert's punt 32 yards from his own 10 to 40, and on the next play faded back and passed to Preston Clipper, fleet Negro end, on the Don 30 yard line. Clipper ran the remaining 30 yards to yard line. The pass was completed in the territory of Beall, who let Clipper get behind him.

It was a short-lived triumph—quite-produced. Don victory came when they took possession of the ball on the Pasadena 49, after Boase's punt, and in four plays—two line thrusts and two perfect passes from Herbert to Bill Greshner—found themselves on the Bulldog 1-yard line, and first down. It ended as Breshers intercepted Herbert's pass on the Pasadena 7-yard line.

The Dons threatened twice more in the fourth period, but the game ended with Pasadena in possession of the ball on their own 27-yard line, after intercepting Keopse's desperate last minute pass.

The Dons made 7 first downs to the Bulldogs' 5, 117 yards from scrimmage to Pasadena's 89; 50 yards from pass plays to 154 for Pasadena; returned punts 76 yards to Pasadena's 98, and intercepted two passes one good for 86 yards most Pasadena's 4 interceptions good for 11 yards. The Dons attempted 16 passes and completed 5, while the Bulldogs attempted 20 and completed 9. Coach Bill Cook was well satisfied with the performance of his line, who completely outplayed the Pasadena forward wall, but has plenty of "skull" practice and pass defense mapped out for all the backfield men Monday. Glendale javes comes here next Friday night.

CAPITAL AND WAGES

Editor Register:

Last Friday's Register editorially discussed a letter submitted by this writer several weeks ago, wherein exception was taken to an earlier Register editorial contending that high wages were made possible only because of the large amount of capital invested.

My communication was devoted to the single theme that labor's wages in industry are paid out of its own production, and not out of invested capital; but, incidentally, I stated that the largest fortunes in America demonstrated that capital itself, beginning with a small investment, usually arises chiefly from the surplus earnings of labor—citing illustrations to prove the point.

Your editorial states: "Mr. Walker, by insinuation and by inference intimates that Henry Ford has not earned the billion dollars." A mere insinuation was not intended, but instead the equivalent of a direct assertion. On January 14, 1891, United States Senator John J. Ingham—easily the greatest and most learned Kansas—stated on the floor of the Senate that he did not believe "any man in this or any other country ever absolutely earned a million dollars."

Some years later John Wanamaker, the Merchant Prince, after he had accumulated many millions, also stated that "No one ever actually earned a million dollars." In these circumstances, it would seem that one might with propriety state that no person—not even Henry Ford—ever earned a thousand million dollars, with subjecting himself to the imputation that he was "selling envy and hate."

You also say: "If Mr. Walker thinks that capital is not necessary and need not be rewarded, let him point out one solitary instance in history where there are high wages with small amount of capital per worker."

There are two answers to that query: (1) The point you seek to make is entirely foreign to any issue I raised, and I never intimated that capital was not necessary or that it should not be rewarded; and (2) There is abundant evidence that high invested capital does not necessarily mean higher wages. For instance, for nearly a hundred years there was more capital invested in England than in this country in practically every line of industry and manufacture, including furnaces, forges and factories, and manufacturing of machinery, implements and tools, and in cotton mills and woolen mills; yet throughout all that period, in such industries, wages were higher in the United States than in England.

Today there is incomparably more capital invested in industry in England, France, Germany or Italy than in Brazil, Argentina, Peru or Mexico, yet wages of mechanics in practically every industry are substantially higher in the latter countries than in the former. High investment of capital may be a factor in producing high wages, but it is not a controlling factor.

An important factor in producing safer and more sanitary working conditions and higher wages was and is organized labor. Capital fought as a tiger would fight to protect its young, to prevent improved working conditions and higher wages.

After hundreds of millions were made and invested in the steel industry, and after fair wages were paid to American workmen for years in such industry, in the early '90's, in violation of the criminal laws of the land—the Contract Labor Law—the steel magnates sent emissaries to southern and eastern Europe and contracted with cheap labor which was imported to supplant American labor. That was after a high tariff was placed on steel to protect high wages and the American standard of living. Here was a conspicuous instance where increasing investment of capital and increasing profits were followed not by increasing wages, but by diminishing wages.

Again you state: "Mr. Walker evidently thinks that we should not have big factories." Actually I think nothing of the kind, and never made a statement, written or oral, from which such a conclusion might be logically inferred.

Further, you assert: "Under our inclusive, when taxes were appreciably higher than now. And when Ford reduced wages and curtailed production in 1931 and 1932, income taxes had been reduced one-half in 1926, at the instance of Coolidge and Mellon, ostensibly to permit the surplus earnings to be used "to finance industry." Under the low taxes, and when Secretary Mellon was refunding a substantial portion of the taxes paid, bank failures, bankruptcies, and unemployment show as great a percentage of increase from 1926 to 1929 as from 1929 to 1932. Instead of industry expanding, times improving, employment increasing and the standard of living rising, under the low taxes, the depression commenced, production was curtailed, unemployment increased, and the standard of living was lowered.

When the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Bill was enacted in 1930, opposed by the only tariff experts in Congress, and when foreign countries, as threatened, in retaliation raised their tariffs, the American manufacturers looked upon such foreign countries as a new field for monopoly to exploit, and the money they saved in income taxes, by reason of the adoption of the Coolidge-Mellon plan, was used to build manufacturing plants abroad. In October, 1932, present tax laws, it would be impossible for a factory like Ford's to develop and raise the standard of living of all the people. That is a typical reactionary fallacy. I respectfully submit that your statement has no foundation in fact and is demonstrably absurd.

The era in which Ford paid the highest wages and developed the highest percentage of increase in his business was from 1917 to 1920. Senator Thomas J. Walsh, whose statements were always the result of thorough investigation and research, asserted that 600 separate manufacturing plants had been so built abroad by American capital, to compete with American industry and American labor. That was one of the benign effects of the wise policy of reducing income taxes, "to finance industry." Meantime, under the low taxes, the government incurred deficits of $100,000,000 monthly during the last months of the Coolidge regime, with increasing deficits under Hoover, and no relief was furnished to the unemployed and destitute; whereas, "under our present tax laws" relief is furnished, industry is reviving and times are improving.

SHARPLESS WALKER.

Register Editor:

What is the reason that this great document, the Constitution of the U. S., has functioned so effectively? The answer is that its rules and regulations are flexible and permit scope in responding to the varying social conditions.

Its maxims are adequate to modern and ancient conditions alike. Beware of tempering with this mighty bulwark of our nation. Our keynote is not the letter but the spirit. "The letter killeth but the spirit giveth life."

It is to be hoped that the Constitution may serve its purpose in the future as well as in the past. That it may guide, direct and balance the people of the U. S. into reconstructive paths, where the individual, the small business man and the middle class may have a chance as well as those who get their share either by government dole, exploiting, taxation or any other means of getting something for nothing.

Within the last three years this very bulwark of our nation has been assailed and attacked on every side. The New Deal administration has again and again violated the rules and regulations of our Constitution by passing laws which the Supreme Court has found necessary to veto, since they believed them to be unconstitutional. It has been due to the caution, loyalty and watchfulness of the judges of the Supreme Court that our democratic form of government has been preserved. Had they failed a dictator would have ruled supreme. The New Deal is merely another name for the dictatorships of continental Europe.

This great country cannot afford to violate and throw aside those blood-bought democratic principles of our constitution. It is due to this bulwark that we have become a great people, that our country has developed into a land of opportunity whose equal cannot be found anywhere else. What is to be done? Are we willing to cast aside the good things we possess? Are we willing to sell our blood-bought inheritance of a mess of pottage, of government debts, of shiftlessly plugging national debts, of bonuses for killing of pigs and plowing under wheat, or any other fantastic panacea? We need a man at the helm who uses constructive methods instead of destructive.

London is the man. He is an economist, "a pay as you go." What he has done for Kansas that he can do for our nation, the United States. "He who is faithful in the least is faithful in much." He is somewhat like Lincoln, a man of the people, from the prairie soil, with common sense galore. Some of Lincoln's characteristics are his, as simplicity, honesty, and sympathy for the common laborer. If we are truly patriotic, if we are desirous that this shall remain a land of the brave and the free and of equal opportunity, then let us vote for London, the man of the sunflower state. Let us not be bound by the shackles of the W. P. A.

Vote American.

SANTA ANA THEATRE NEWS

SHOW 'RAMONA' AT WEST COAST ON WEDNESDAY

A picture local theater goers have awaited with keen interest, "Ramona," will open at the West Coast theater next Wednesday with a second feature, "The Longest Night." It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The impressive cast in "Ramona," includes Loretta Young, Don Ameche, Kent Taylor, Pauline Frederick, Jane Darwell, Katherine DeMille, Victor Killian and others. It is the film version of the famous story by Helen Hunt Jackson.

The haunting pastoral tragedy comes to the screen in its gorgeous Technicolor trappings as an enthralling high order, rich in romantic charm, moving emotional appeal and finest artistry. It is, first and last, a simple, dramatic love story, carried splendidly by the talented cast. Simple, moving, lovely and pathetic is the gradual unfolding of tragedy in the marriage of the girl, reared as an aristocrat, to the Indian, Alessandro, and the terrible ravishment of the Indian settlement by colonizing whites in a dark chapter of California's early days.

Loretta Young plays and is graced by the Technicolor camera in a mood of idyllic beauty, which for its sheer loveliness, kept previous audiences on the verge of tears. Color close-ups and landscaped scenes are breath-taking in their beauty. Alfred Newman's musical score is unusual and highly effective.

Loaded with hilarity, humor and humor, "The Longest Night" is a diverting comedy featuring Robert Young, Florence Rice, Ted Healy, Julie Haydon and others. Packed with action, the film never drags, and is said to be one of the most natural, laugh-provoking comedies of the season.

Till ranks of seeds their whiteness bear, And softly through the altered air Hurries a timid leaf!

Oh sacrament of summer days! Oh, last communion in the haze! Permit a child to join.

Thy sacred emblems to partake, Thy consecrated break to break, Taste thine immortal wine! —Emily Dickenson.

A PICTURE See I have placed you where the last faint light, Ere the green western skies shall fade into night, Shall linger in your eyes. The pleasant night-wind comes to stroke your hair, Gently, so gently, with a touch so fair And smooth as satin and old ivories.

Shadows, and deeper shadows, yet you smile Up at me through the dusk: a little while And you will go, too soon, Into the dark and that dim bank of trees

Be silhouettes, like old-time memories Across the fields, against the rising moon. —Edward M. James.

AT BROADWAY SUNDAY

Three of the stars in the colorful filmization of the immortal James Fenimore Cooper classic, "The Last of the Mohicans," are shown below in a dramatic scene from the pretentious production which opens an engagement at the Broadway theater tomorrow. The stars are Randolph Scott, Henry Wilcoxon and Binnie Barnes. Second feature on the program is "Yellowstone," dramatic crime mystery film.

"LAST OF MOHICANS" OPENS BROADWAY THEATER SUNDAY

"The Last of the Mohicans," colorful filmization of the immortal James Fenimore Cooper classic, hailed as one of the most authentic and pretentious pictures of its kind ever produced, opens an engagement at the Broadway theater tomorrow, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

NEW ZANE GREY PICTURE OPENS AT WEST COAST

Zane Grey, America's outstanding writer of outdoor stories, has chosen a new and thrilling locale for his latest work, "King of the Royal Mounted," which opens today at the West Coast theater with a second feature, "They Met in a Taxi," according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Robert Kent is starred in "King of the Royal Mounted," and the big cast includes Rosalind Keith, Alan Dinehart and other favorites. The film is high-lighted by spectacular action, scenic grandeur, hard-riding romance and fast-shooting thrills. Kent is seen as Sergeant King, in charge of a remote outpost in the primitive rugged country of Northwest Canada. Miss Keith and Dinehart, visitors, arouse King's suspicions when he learns that the girl has registered under an assumed name and that Dinehart is her attorney.

Kent discovers that Miss Keith and her lawyer are really after a valuable mine which is being operated by Frank McGlynn. Miss Keith claims to own a half-interest in the mine inherited from her father, McGlynn's former partner. McGlynn becomes aware of Rosalind's real identity and plans to restore her interest, but is murdered before he can do so, with suspicion falling on both the girl and Dinehart. Kent, torn between love for the girl and duty, nevertheless sets out to discover the murderer. The climax, replete with thrills and romance, is fast-moving, exciting and surprising.

A four-star cast comprising Chester Morris, Fay Wray, Lionel Stander and Raymond Walburn cavort through the leading roles of "They Met in a Taxi," based on the famous story by Octavus Roy Cohen. Few films ever capture the glowing good humor and romantic charm of this film, which is gay, giddy and filled with romance and comedy.

EXCITING DRAMA AT STATE

Karen Morley and Richard Dix, below, have the leads in "Devil's Squadron," a story of the pilots who make test dives, which comes to the State theater Sunday for a three-day showing.

DRAMATIC A R FILM OPENS AT STATE SUNDAY

Shattered nerves, courage and cowardice are graphically portrayed in "Devil's Squadron," a film story of the lives of the pilots who test new airplanes, which shows on the State screen Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

According to advance notices, this drama which stars Richard Dix and Karen Morley, speeds to a highly dramatic climax that leaves the spectators feeling as if they had just come out of a zooming dive with the wings about ready to tear off.

The second feature presents Jane Withers in the role of a good little girl who's always in bad. The picture is titled "Little Miss Nobody" and the capable child star is shown as an impish inmate of an orphan asylum. One of her stunts is taking a complete dinner from the back of a grocery wagon so the children will not go hungry on Thanksgiving day. She gets into real trouble for an unselfish act in attempting to switch identities so a chum will be adopted.

BROADWAY BILL CLOSES TONIGHT

The most important star discovery in recent years, Simone Simon, is featured in "Girls' Dormitory," which shows for the last times tonight at the Broadway theater along with a second feature, "Sworn Enemy," dramatic romance of young love and sinister gangsters.

"Girls' Dormitory" has an exceptional cast, headed by Ruth Chatterton, Herbert Marshall, J. Edward Bromberg, Constance Collier, and John Qualen. It is a romantic story of the love of an adolescent school girl for her adult teacher, which eventually triumphs over the enduring devotion of a mature woman who loves the same man.

In the nature of a problem play, the picture is most skillfully performed by the capable cast. It is filled with dramatic situations, which occur in everyday life. Set in Germany, the film's initial sequences revolve around the finding of an unaddressed letter, discovered by a puritanical teacher, and brought to the attention of the faculty. Through Marshall, Miss Chatterton seeks to defend Miss Simon, who is accused, calling it a childish whim. From this point on the picture builds up to a tremendous climax.

The contrast of young romance and crafty gangsterdom is vividly presented in "Sworn Enemy." The story concerns two young brothers, raised in the seething heart of a great city where the influence of grim racketeers is never far away. One of the brothers is killed by members of a gang, because he knows too much, and the other swears to avenge him. The cast includes Robert Young, Joseph Calleia, Nat Pendleton, Florence Rice, Lewis Stone, Harold Huber, Harvey Stephens and Samuel Hinds.

Luncheon Appointments Are in Harmony With Theme of Party

Tiny Patricia Ann Brown, a smiling, roly-poly baby just three months old, was very much the center of attraction at the luncheon given by her mother, Mrs. George Brown, of La Habra, at a charmingly planned party which Mrs. C. F. Cornelius and Mrs. C. L. Hicks joined in presenting this week, in the Cornelius home, 1325 East Fourth street.

Guests were invited for luncheon, decorative details of which included the handsome Irish linen napery, clusters of pink and blue blossoms, and such appointments as place cards and nut cups in the same color scheme appropriate to babyhood.

Afternoon hours brought a succession of games with their consequent prize awards made to Mrs. Merriweather Barnett, Mrs. Floyd Suthen and Mrs. Marion Christman. Presentation of the pretty gifts introduced the surprise feature of the afternoon when to Mrs. Brown was presented a pretty baby for her small daughter, the gift of co-hostesses and guests.

Mrs. Cornelius and Mrs. Hicks entertained in addition to their home and her tiny daughter from La Habra, Mesdames A. Heard, W. D. Dobyms, H. L. Hicks, D. Wooten, the Misses Beulah Adkins and Clara Dunham, Santa Ana; Mesdames Edward Brown, William Henry, Lena Hixon, Orange; Mrs. William Jackson, Corona; Mrs. Marie Mayer, Silverado; Mesdames Ivan Johnson, Floyd Suthen, S. ## Santa Ana Returns Home From New Orleans

One of three California residents attending the All-American Beauty School convention in New Orleans in August, Mrs. Paul McClelland, 621 East First street, returned home recently enthusiastic over the possibility of introducing some of the latest coiffure modes in the Southland.

Mrs. McClelland, who is manager of the Chicago College of Beauty in this city, and the other two California delegates to the conclave, were instrumental in arranging for next year's convention to be held in Los Angeles.

This year's event was in session August 17-22 at Hotel Roosevelt in New Orleans. Dr. G. A. Ward, an outstanding skin and scalp specialist, and other leading men and women in the field of cosmetology were speakers. While in New Orleans, Mrs. McClelland visited the French quarter and was interested in visiting the newly finished Huey Long bridge.

The Santa Ana traveled through the Canadian Rockies, up into Vancouver, B. C., and to Corvallis, Ore., where she was a guest in the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown, former residents of this community. Mrs. McClelland was accompanied south by her mother, Mrs. H. A. Brown, of Orange, who had been visiting in Corvallis. The two spent some time in San Francisco. Mrs. McClelland taking that opportunity to visit some of the beauty schools of the bay cities.

Frances Willard

Executive board members of Frances Willard P. T. A. met yesterday in the office of Lyle B. Mitchell, school principal, to outline plans for the association's work this year, and complete program arrangements for Tuesday night when the year will be launched with a Fathers' Night meeting in the school library.

Adoption of a budget was of primary importance, and decision was reached to start a membership drive on Monday. For Tuesday night's meeting, which will open at 7:15 o'clock, the program committee has secured a speaker that they feel will be of special interest to association fathers. He is Roland H. Upton, superintendent of Buena Park schools, recognized as a witty and entertaining speaker.

"The Need of P. T. A. Work in Junior High Schools" has been announced as theme of the address by the guest superintendent. The program will include also songs by the Elks double quartet. Following the program executive board members will preside at a reception for teachers and parents, and will serve refreshments in the school cafeteria while a seven-piece Hawaiian orchestra, provided by PWA, plays a succession of native melodies.

HAS PASSION PLAY ROLE

Joseph Smith, below, takes the dramatic part of John, the Beloved, in the famous Passion Play which is to be staged in the Santa Ana Municipal Bowl the evenings of September 23 and 24. The event is sponsored by the local Elks lodge as a benefit for the Christmas Basket fund.

PASSION PLAY PROMISES TO BE COLORFUL AND REALISTIC

Like vivid tapestries magically touched into movement and speech, the gorgeous simulation of Christ's Passion, Crucifixion and Resurrection will be presented in the world-famous Passion Play to be staged in the Santa Ana Municipal Bowl the evenings of September 23 and 24 under auspices of Santa Ana Elks Lodge No. 794 as a benefit for the Christmas Basket fund, according to William Garvin, general chairman of the Elks committee in charge.

It is an old, old story that the Passion Players depict, one that has been told in story and lesson and even in the movies but never with the dramatic force and reality with which it will be shown in the bowl. In coloring and settings alone this tremendous production promises to be overpowering.

The performance itself begins slowly, softly, with white garbed maidens in silent adoration of the Cross. They circle it in silent benediction, in a quiet passion of worship. Soon the scene shifts and the Christus appears—the radiance of His person permeating the vast place and seeming to magically swell the many people on the stage setting. The crowds acclaim him, he is showered with worship. Then, gathering with tremendous force, the drama piles up—moves—the setting grows vaster and seems to lose its boundaries, so that the spectator looks into limitless spaces.

Judas Appears
Judas appears, and though frequently out of sight, his figure moves henceforth, a sinister thread, throughout the first half of the drama. Judas, of all players, alone is called upon to act with more than conventional fervor. First the traitor, then the miserable penitent, he is a striking figure.

Inevitably the drama moves to its final culmination. Through the betrayal, the trial, the fearful persecution, the veils of the worshipping women, of Mary and Martha and Magdalene, through the whole living tapestry brought to life, the Christus moves to the supreme sacrifice.

Upon the cross He hangs, His pale face lighted by flaming eyes and in frenzy he screams "My God, My God! Why has Thou forsaken Me?" And again "It is finished!—Oh Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit!" The Christus bows his head, the earthquakes come and the people flee in terror.

Birds are able to express fear, pain, alarm, anxiety, complaint, rage, love and distress with their wide range of call notes.

Woman's Clubs

The traceries of the activities for the Woman's Clubs are now being drawn. The patterns which will be woven from these lines are the designs which will evolve throughout the coming year.

The associations, formed during each club year, are both cultural and practically beneficial. The groups partaking of the advantages of each section form friendships; they meet as casual acquaintances and become friends bound with kindred interests.

A Woman's Club justifies itself, not alone during each meeting but during each day between times. Each member has a new interest other than the monotony of planning, preparing and then serving three meals each day, making beds, washing dishes. She has a mental stimulus that transcends the humdrum of domestic duties and activities.

A woman's first duty is to maintain her alertness, a membership in a Woman's Club is one certain way of broadening her perception of current events.

"Assurance and Security"

Text: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose" — or, as another version has it: "Those who have received the call in accordance with His purpose."

—ROMANS 8:28.

We live in an age where there is more or less doubt and conjecture; how inspiring to find a man who speaks with such assurance on such a weighty subject and knows what he says is true.

He had suffered because of his love for God and His truth. He had been imprisoned, stoned, beaten with stripes, and yet he is able to say after all this: "All things work together for good—"

Several years ago there was a shipwreck away out at sea. Only one man was saved. He managed, by clinging to a few boards, to get to land on a small, lone, uninhabited island. With the boards he made a little crude hut. A few days later he was out hunting something to eat, and his hut caught fire and burned up. Sailors aboard a ship away out at sea saw the fire and regarded it as a signal for help and came and rescued the man.

The man thought all was lost when he beheld his little hut burning, and was ready to give up when he saw the ship making its way toward him, and when they came up they told him how they saw the fire and thought it a signal of distress, so came to the rescue. He exclaimed, in the words of the text: "All things work together for good—" David said: "I have been young, and now am old; yet never have I seen the righteous forsaken, nor His seed begging bread." And again he says: "Before I was afflicted I went astray; but now have I kept Thy word. It is good for me that I have been afflicted, that I might learn Thy statutes."

Many times in our lives we are inclined to think our lot a deplorable one, but how often have each found that it proved later to work to our good.

A firm trust in God and an earnest obedience to His will will always prove, sooner or later, that "all things work together for good." A few illustrations from Biblical history may help us to see the truthfulness and verity of the statement of that text: The death of Jesus was regarded by His nearest disciples as the greatest calamity that could come to them. But later they saw how it was the greatest blessing. When Barnabas and Saul were called to leave the mother church, that was looked upon by the church as the worst thing that could befall the church because it was taking away their best workers. But it proved to be for their good and their wonderful contribution to the spread of the gospel. Peter's vision on the house-top was received with a question-mark as to its value; but it proved to be just the thing that was needed. The man born blind thought — and all the people thought — that the worst thing that could befall him had been his lot. But it proved to be a blessing.

So may we gain assurance and security from the text.

"From examination, there appeared to be no better way of draining the area than by this culvert on Gothard," Workman continued in his report. "Mr. Menton will take the matter under advisement with the road department and endeavor to find a solution. The owner and resident at the southwest corner of Garfield and Main, V. B. ## Weekly Citrus Review

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—(UP)—The demand for California Valencia oranges was better this week notwithstanding the Jewish holiday. The volume of sales will be somewhat higher than last week at fully 200 per box higher than last week's average. Small sizes particularly showed a substantial improvement notwithstanding a continued liberal shipping program.

P.O.B. California quotations for Valencia oranges on a basis of $4.15 to $4.25 on sizes 120s and larger; $3.90 to $4.00 on 100s; $3.75 to $3.85 on 80s to 100s; $3.50 to $3.60 on 60s to 80s; and $3.25 to $3.35 on 40s to 60s.

The growers' advisory committee set the price for Valencia for next week at 1000 cars for interstate commerce and 225 for intrastate.

This market on California lemons was steady this week with large sales continuing to bring a substantial premium because of the scarcity of these sizes.

P.O.B. California quotations on extra choice 300s ranged from $5 to $5.25 per box; $4.50 to $4.75; 425s, $4 to $4.25; 460s and smaller $3.50 to $3.70.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next 30 days in all United States ports, no foreign lemons. During the corresponding period in 1935 and 1934 there were none; 1933, 3 cars; 1932 42 cars, 1931, 29 cars.

WHAT IS NATIONAL PLANNING?

Of course, everyone believes in "planning". It is alluring and certainly sounds intellectual. Who would not plan? Who does not believe in foresight—in provision for the future in an intelligent direction?

These beliefs are, at first thought, universally accepted but what national "planning" really is, many people do not realize. The best explanation we have ever read of what national planning is was written by a distinguished British economist, Lionel Robbins. He said:

"If planning is not a polite name for giving sectional advantages to particular industries, what does it denote but socialism—central control of the means of production? A 'planned' economy introduced by right-wing parties might for a time (until the parties of the left got control) acknowledge certain rights to the receipt of income, in the past associated with the ownership of property, which would be destroyed at the outset by a purely socialist dictatorship. But, if it were to be true to its name, it could not acknowledge the substance of ownership, the right of individual disposal of the actual instruments of production. For 'planning' involves central control. And central control excludes the right of individual disposal. Nothing but intellectual confusion can result from a failure to realize that Planning and Socialism are fundamentally the same."

When we really analyze national "planning", we see, as Mr. Robbins does, that it is nothing else but state socialism and private management and initiative must give way to the one planner. This has always spelled chaos because the parts can never be larger than the whole.

HOW NEAR LIKE SPAIN!

Those who can see quite often what will happen before it does happen, cannot help but wonder how far we are from the conditions that are now existing in Spain.

When we here on the Pacific coast see a condition in Salinas in the state of civil war, and in Seattle that for one solid month has prevented a newspaper from being published, then those who are in the habit of looking ahead wonder when we will be in the condition Spain is now facing.

The mayor of Seattle was elected this spring because he advocated force in his campaign speeches. He said, "Union labor is based on coercion. It cannot exist without it. If union labor cannot coerce the worker to join it, then it is through. There can't be any such thing as a labor union without coercion." Labor unions are here to stay and they are going to get bigger and they are going to get more aggressive. Labor unions must coerce employees of necessity. A fellow asked me if I believed in peaceful picketing and I said I never heard of such a thing; that if such a thing existed I might believe in it but I don't think any such thing can exist because I think the word "peaceful" and the word "picketing" don't go together. They certainly are using force both at Salinas and at Seattle.

Chapin Hall is now writing a series of articles in the Los Angeles Times, explaining how the Teamsters' union in Seattle keeps a clean-up force constantly on guard ready to use force and violence of the worst kind to prevent people from working at the newspaper office; and the mayor, the city and the state of Washington give those who desire to work no protection. All contend that it is the intention of the Teamsters' union to organize the whole Pacific coast. Of course, if any group can get control of the transportation of the community, everybody must pay tribute to them, no matter how big the tribute may be.

This is similar to what has happened in Spain and is now happening in France and those people who are paying tribute are rebelling and risking their lives to throw off this domination.

Again, we ask how long it will be until a condition exists in the United States similar to what exists in Spain. Our contented politicians and political educators go serenely along in a trance believing that human nature is different here than it is the world over.

CAPITAL PER WORKER

Under the Clearing House, Sharpless Walker has an article taking exception to our statement that wages, in the long run, depend upon the amount of capital per worker. He disregards the subject entirely, as per the amount of capital per worker and cites several illustrations which are not at all on the subject, as to the amount of total capital in different countries, without any regard to the number of workers, or the amount of capital per worker. Therefore, he has not cited a single example as requested that wages do not depend on the amount of capital PER WORKER.

If he believes that any man's production can be large for any length of time, without tools, he is in reality saying that a man can lift as much without a lever as with one. He certainly will not contend that wages can be high for any length of time without high production. The only possible way there could be large wages for any length of time without efficient tools would be to discover some natural resource, like gold or some mineral, but this would not be a general high wage on the average but only to a few fortunate.

On his contention that men cannot earn a million, he quotes a politician and a merchant, who wants to be popular with the mass, as proof. We don't regard those kinds of statements as authentic or of any value.

He proves the contention of The Register that wages do depend upon the amount of capital PER WORKER, when he complains about the steel industry imported laborers. That is exactly our contention; that if there are lots of workers and little capital, of necessity, wages will be low.

If Mr. Walker does not think that Ford earned what he has, would he suggest that he should have sold his cars for less in the earlier stages of his career, or would he suggest that he pay higher wages to his workers and, if so, how would he select the workers to whom he was to give a higher wage than they could secure working elsewhere? If Ford had pursued either of these policies how would he have been able to compete now with other manufacturers. As it is his losses for the past three years have been over $60,000,000. Does he not believe that society is better off by having a large plant accumulated by selling his product on a competitive basis and hiring his labor on a competitive basis, rather than a gift basis, and permitting this wealth to be dissipated and, thus preventing the plant from being built?

Mr. Walker says that he does not think that we should not have big factories. We drew that conclusion for the reason that there is no way of having big factories without permitting the man to grow rapidly who is performing a service people want done. When he objects to anybody accumulating wealth rapidly, it is synonymous with saying that there should be no large factories. There cannot be large factories without abstaining, without good management and without big rewards for good management and it follows, as night follows day, that when he protests against big profits, there can be no big factories, no matter what he contends he believes.

He objects to the conclusion that he is selling envy and hate when he argues that no man can earn a million. Is he not when in reality he insinuates all who have more than a million have secured it without earning it by being of service to their fellow man? If this be true they should be and would be hated, would they not?

It is often said that we need not worry about the rich. That they can take care of themselves. True, but if accumulation of capital be retarded the poor will be the principal sufferers.

If prices are not to be the guide as to who is to be hired and what is to be bought, what will be the guide, other than coercion?

Certainly capital went abroad, when it was scarce abroad and more in demand. Certainly there can be large amounts of what was formerly wealth taken out of the country or allowed to deteriorate in this country; when the federal government so mismanages its money and so restricts and restrains the growth and private management of capital in this country, it naturally seeks the field where it is more in demand and where the reward is greatest.

DEBTOR OR CREDITOR NATION?

We are indebted to C. H. Stearns for the loan of a very interesting brochure on the subject of "Scientific Methods of Thought in Our National Problems", by Frederick P. Garvin, president of Chemical Foundation, Inc. It very clearly explains what scientific habit of thought really is. He quotes Huxley and Bacon on the subject.

The author's contention is that we do not properly keep our bookkeeping accounts for our government. He explains very clearly the necessity of trying to preserve our national resources for future protection.

One of the statements that surprised us was that, in reality, for the first three months of '36, our imports exceed our exports not, in reality by $5,000,000 as reported, but the unfavorable balance is near $381,000,000.

Another place he points out that our wealth invested abroad amounts to practically $9,000,000,000, of which $6,000,000,000 is in plants and factories and frozen, while foreigners have invested in the United States practically $7,600,000,000, representing practically 100 per cent liquid assets. This, he points out, is a very dangerous situation because the foreigners can withdraw this very rapidly and, thus, greatly reduce our price structure. He contends that this is what happened to us in 1929; that the foreigners began to liquidate their assets in this country.

He says, for example, foreigners' short term balances were taken home; $500,000,000 in 1930; $800,000,000 in 1931; $400,000,000 in 1932 and $400,000,000 in 1933 and each withdrawal of a dollar by a foreigner was equivalent to the loss of $1 in gold and a contraction of $10 in credit.

It seems to us that the author fails to recognize the difference of former withdrawals of securities from the present. Now they can withdraw the paper money but cannot withdraw gold, as they could at that time. This would make a great difference from the standpoint of its effect on prices.

AMOUNT OF MONEY

Candidate Lemke and Father Coughlin have just ground to complain about the money and the bankers. They seem to know that something is wrong but do not seem to understand what has been the cause and, consequently, do not understand how to correct it.

They do not realize that the price structure was greatly increased because of expansion of credit and later greatly decreased because of contraction of credit. They propose to print more money but do not seem to realize that the expansion of credit, or giving the banks the right to legally counterfeit "money", is a thing that must be stopped.

Some very keen economists are of the opinion that we will eventually have to further devalue the dollar and issue further currency against this and then put a stop to the privilege of bankers having the right to legally counterfeit money and call it "loans".

If they do nothing else than to get the people to realize the necessity of better banking laws, they will have performed some service.

Little Benny's
Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

Me and Puds Simkins and Sam Cross was sitting on Sam's front steps talking about different subjects, and Sam said, I stayed up till after 12 o'clock last night prying near one in the morning.

G. how was your mother and father out? I said and Sam said, No, just the opposite, they was home, but they couldn't do a thing about it because while we was eating supper I told them I wouldn't eat a single bite if they didn't promise to leave me stay up as late as I felt like, and I just sat there not eating till they promised, so of course they had to keep their promise.

Sam Cross being one of the most famous liars ever heard of, and just then his mother called him in for his lunch, and Puds said, Hay Benny, do you believe that stuff about staying up and everything?

Let's try it for an experiment, anyways, I said. Let's both tell our mother we won't eat any lunch if we ain't aloud to go to the movies this afternoon, do you think that's a good idea? I said, and Puds said, Let's try it and find out, I'll be over at your house after lunch.

And we both went to our own house and my lunch was on the dining room table already, being samson salad and looking pretty good, and I sat there looking at it and ma said, Well, are you waiting to be properly introduced to your lunch before you'll dane to eat it?

I don't believe I feel like any lunch, I said, and ma said, Then don't eat any, I was just reading a very good article on the advantages of skipping an occasional meal, children included.

Well I think I could eat if my appetite was tempted, and I believe if I thawt I could go to the movies this afternoon I believe I guess maybe that would tempt it, I said, and ma said, Well the brazer idea, now just for that you can eat or not as you please, and you won't go to any movie and you won't stir out of this house.

Wich I didn't, and Puds called me up on the fone and told me the same thing was happening to him, our only consolation being that we had both ate our lunch.

When Company L met last night, the first lieutenant, County Surveyor J. L. McBride, got the surprise of his life when a telegram was read by Captain Ullm, announcing the marriage on September 20 of Lieutenant McBride to Miss Ella Maxwell of Corona, daughter of a former city marshal of Santa Ana. McBride had expected to keep the wedding a secret from his comrades until the news was telegraphed to Captain Ullm after the event. He proved game in the face of the surprise and took the entire company to the Cherry Blossom for ice cream and cigars.

The board of supervisors voted unanimously the appropriation of $500 from the advertising fund, for the carnival to open in Anaheim on September 29.

Day By Day In Washington

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1936)

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 19.—This is the insurance capital of the world and I came here to find out the inside story of the controversy that has arisen over life insurance, and particularly why the President of the United States thought it of sufficient importance to summon a group of presidents of life insurance companies to the White House.

Well, there were no presidents of companies here who had been at the White House, and, judging by the reluctance which insurance executives have about being quoted anyway on delicate matters of this kind, I doubt whether they would have said very much anyway about the Washington conference.

But there is a lot of important information here and plenty of facts in such documents, for instance, as the annual proceedings of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, so that, if the reader will indulge me the liberty of describing a hypothetical conversation, I will present here what the President of the United States might have asked and what the life insurance presidents might have replied if this were not a political year.

Q. Are life insurance companies safe?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Are they well administered?

A. With all due modesty, we think they are the best administered financial investment institutions in the world.

Q. What are your troubles, then?

A. We cannot find suitable investments that will yield us enough return to keep up the earnings that we ought to have. The money we take in from premiums must be kept constantly invested.

Q. But you can buy government bonds, can't you?

A. Yes, but we already have too large a proportion of them.

Q. What is the proportion?

A. We now have 14.5 per cent of all our assets invested in securities of the federal government alone.

Q. Is this high?

A. Yes, it is the highest in our history. In 1934, for instance, it was just above 8 per cent. By December, 1935, it had gone up to 11 per cent and now the latest figures show 14.5 per cent of all our assets in federal securities.

Q. What about your idle cash?

A. That, too, is the highest we have ever had. We now have and have had since last December about $750,000,000 in cash.

Q. What's wrong about that?

A. We must earn a certain return on our money if policy holders are to be given insurance at a reasonable cost. If we cannot invest our money for an adequate return, it raises the cost of insurance. We have frankly stated that on more than one occasion that, if the low interest rate program instituted by the government keeps up and if business and industry hesitate to float new securities in which we can invest, there will have to be a reduction in dividend payments to policy holders.

Q. This would not, of course, include the companies that do not have a participation in earnings by policy holders?

A. No, but on new policies they too would have to raise their premiums to the policy holders.

Q. You mean to tell me that the cost of life insurance generally may be going up?

A. Yes, and that's why the Public ought to buy now, so to speak. For no matter what comes, life insurance policies are absolutely the best form of investment and the cost is still reasonable.

Q. But what about the proceeds of life insurance? Are they safe?

A. That's something for the policy holder to worry about. If the present trend in government budget continues, and we have inflation, it means that the widows and recipients of paid up insurance will not be able to buy as much out of a dollar for their necessities as they can today.

Q. Do you mean that, even if inflation comes, your companies will be safe?

A. Absolutely, for we are just like banks. We pay out in exactly the same unit of currency—the dollar—as we take in. The purchasing power of that dollar, however, is something that we have nothing to do with.

Q. Have you reduced dividend payments as a whole in recent years?

A. Yes, for various reasons our dividend disbursements have been going down, partly due to defaults in various mortgages and other securities and partly due to the reduced earnings of our investments and our inability to get suitable investments at a higher rate of return.

Q. What do the figures show?

A. Well, the Spectator company, which publishes insurance trade journals, shows that the trend has been downward. Dividends rose steadily from 1925 and reached a peak in 1931, dropped a little in 1932 but were still above the 1930 figure. Then in 1933, 1934 and 1935 the dividend payments to policy holders dropped steadily to $424,255,533 for the year 1935. This is a drop of $138,000,000 from the year 1932.

Q. Besides your unused cash, would you say that much of the money you have invested in government securities is in short term securities at very low interest?

A. Yes, the portfolios of different companies vary, but perhaps 50 per cent, or about $1,432,000,000, is in short term or medium term federal government securities earning a very low rate of interest.

Q. Then, if you can't invest your money in more remunerative investments, you must ultimately reduce your dividends and this raises the cost of insurance to future policy holders and to present policy holders who depend on their dividends to cut the annual cost of their premiums?

A. That is right and will be the case if the present trend in money rates continues.

Q. Whom do you hold responsible for the low interest rates?

A. The administration in Washington has claimed credit for the low interest rates. The government possesses artificial factors which can keep money rates down, as, for instance, by purchases of

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

BRIBERY-BLACKMAIL POLITICS

There are three basic governmental reforms that would go far towards injecting a new honesty and a new realism into American politics, viz:

(1) Take the determination and administration of relief out of politics by devising some non-partisan authority to take it in hand.

(2) Extend the civil service to the point where anything like mass patronage would disappear.

(3) Lengthen the presidential term and make the president ineligible for re-election.

Mass relief cannot but become a vast source of political corruption. I do not mean that a Roosevelt or a Landon will deliberately resort to bribery by the use of relief funds. I mean only that the temptation to throw out glamorous relief promises when votes are to be snared is well-nigh irresistible. The president who has spent money on relief lavishly establishes a vote-getting power quite irrespective of the soundness of his general policies. As long as relief is a matter of party politics relief will be a force for corruption in politics.

Mass patronage cannot but become a vast source of political corruption. No administration should be in position to buy votes with jobs even if the jobholders are capable. Administrations should come and go solely on the grounds of the soundness or unsoundness of their policies. It is politically indecent to see a cabinet member like the Postmaster General, in one administration after another, little more than a job dispenser for political advantage. Here is a problem that goes beyond the Browns and the Farleys. It is the system that is wrong.

And, finally, even the best man who reaches the White House must keep a weather eye on reelection, and this seriously hampers even the ablest man in disinterested administration of national policy. The president should not be eligible for re-election after a term long enough to give him a chance to do a decent job.

The handing out of relief, the enterprise of job giving, and the angling for reelection are three forces making for government by mass bribery.

And if, on the giving end, these three things make for mass bribery by government, on the receiving end they make for mass blackmail of government.

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

PROBLEMS OF BIG CHILDREN

The child who is taller, bigger than the companion, feels at a disadvantage. Children hate to be different in any way, and to find themselves made conspicuous by their height or weight or bigness is something to grieve about. We find them trying to make themselves small by scrounging down in their seats, bending their heads, taking all sorts of bad postures.

We find them hiding themselves in other ways. They stay in the background. They don't volunteer for dramatics, they don't go to dances, they avoid appearing in any place where others look at them. This is bad because it builds up mental barriers, as well as physical ones, between themselves and complete living.

Just telling a child "O, don't be silly. Nobody's looking at you," does not help in the least. People do look at them. Sometimes in admiration, more often in wonder. Who wants to be a wonder in such a field? To be singled out as a curiosity is not soothing to one's pride. It does not make for complacency. What can be done about it?

Dress the big child, the tall child, the heavy one, in such a way as to lessen his marked difference. Forget about his age, and buy clothes that suit him no matter what label they bear. Make him look good to the eyes that are turned toward him every time he rises or moves in the classroom. If he knows he looks well half the sting is taken out at once.

Try to have him go with children more his own size. Schools are usually cooperative in this matter and issue special programs for such children, allowing them to spend some of their time with larger children. That all helps.

Teach him that his height, or his size, is no disgrace. It is the mark of fitness and health. The larger children have more power as a usual thing, than the little ones. Stature has a relation of health and power. A well-fed, well-bred child will be bigger than one who is not so well fed nor of such vitality. "There is room for more good blood, room for more intelligence, power for more activity in your big body than in the little body you envy," said the teacher to one towering lad who was trying to make himself small enough to hide behind a waste basket. "Stand up and claim your place. You're the biggest; be the best."

Keep trying to get these children to value their size. Try to get them to make it an asset among their many others. Praise good carriage. Point out the success of the tall ones of the earth and so condition their thinking to acceptance of their endowments.

Even then there is something for the children to overcome. They stand out in a crowd, and they dislike it. You will have to stand by, keep encouraging, teaching, praising, until they catch up to their height and weight by growth of mind and body. Keep poking them out of their corners, keep showing them their opportunities, make it possible for them to feel comfortable whenever you can. It is hard to be different when you are young.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

government securities with various funds of its own and by its restrictions upon business and industry that cause businessmen to hesitate to undertake new financing.

Q. But haven't the figures from the securities and exchange commission shown a huge total of new financings?

A. Yes, but nearly all the issues being floated are to refinance or refund old issues. Very few are new capital. Also the ones refounded are brought out at even lower interest rates than before, and this further cuts our earnings.

Q. What do you think is the cure for all this?

A. A real budgetary program for the government and a cutting out of all extravagance and waste and a policy that removes the fears and uncertainties from industry and business and revives, if not repeats, such vicious pieces of tax legislation as the recent tax on the rainy day reserves of prudently managed industrial companies.

Q. When do you expect all this to happen?

A. When the presidential and vice presidential candidates get through campaigning and we all get down to fundamental economics once more.

Prepare New Tango Ordinance At Huntington Beach

BITTER FIGHT FLARES AGAIN IN BEACH CITY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 18.—The bitter fight among residents of Huntington Beach concerning the establishment of tango and similar games here flared last night, when the city council met in adjourned session to consider the matter.

Two weeks ago, the council approved an initiative measure calling for the licensing of tango parlors at the rate of $50 per chair, or a minimum of $500 per year. This proposition, which will be included on the November 3 ballot, limits the number of games of chance in the city to two of a kind. That is, there shall not be more than two tango games, or two of any other type of game.

Last night, the council authorized the city attorney to prepare an ordinance calling for the establishment of a license fee of $250 annually, or a minimum fee of $2500 annually. It places no limit on the number of games, but does provide that the proprietors of parlors where games of chance are played be residents of the city for three years prior to his application for license. In the first proposal, it was demanded that the applicant must have been a resident of Huntington Beach for five years.

Next Monday night, the council will again meet to consider the tango licensing problem. According to Mayor Willis Warner, both propositions will be included in the November ballot.

Under the leadership of Lawrence E. Worthy and Mrs. Elsie J. Patrick, a Citizens' Protective league has been organized for the purpose of battling any proposition calling for the establishment of the tango games in Huntington Beach. Funds have been raised to carry on the battle, and the various civic and social organizations in the community have been urged by the league to help in the fight.

EARLY COUNTY HISTORY TOLD

PLACENTIA, Sept. 18.—Early development of industry, civic improvements and schools of Orange county were discussed last night by Otto Des Granges, who came to this district in 1871, when he was principal speaker at the regular meeting of Grace Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, at Placentia Round Table clubhouse.

The plans for entering a Butterfield stage coach as their representation in the parade at the Los Angeles county fair Sunday were presented by Mrs. Helen Anderson, who also told the history of the Butterfield route, one of the early mail routes to San Francisco from Independence, Missouri. This particular coach is the property of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hanson of San Clemente, given them by Mr. Hanson's father. It carries 14 passengers and is 78 years old.

Lawrence Lemke will drive four horses in the parade, two of his and two belonging to A. Navarro. Mrs. Lena Wagner is chairman of the parade entry committee. The women who will ride will dress in costume such as they wore to show at the meeting last night. They are Lucanna McFadden, Helen Anderson, Christine McFarland, Rena Johnson, Kate Hill, Matilda Enfield, Nellie Cline, Mae Lemke and Rebecca Hasson.

THE CENTER OF GRAVITY OF THE EARTH-MOON SYSTEM LIES AT A POINT ABOUT 3,000 MILES FROM THE CENTER OF THE EARTH.

PEARLS ARE FOUND IN NEARLY ALL SIZABLE STREAMS IN THE UNITED STATES.

WHEN the moon is straight overhead, we may know that the entire earth-moon system is revolving around an axis, which is about 1000 miles over our feet. The earth's center travels each month around a circle about 6000 miles in diameter.

CENTER HEARS TALKS ON NEW LAW MEASURES

TUSTIN, Sept. 18.—The pros and cons of the referendum measure to be on the November ballot concerning tax on chain stores were discussed at the Tustin Farm Center meeting first by Roy Cole of Whittier, who spoke against the tax, and by George O. Hayne, independent grocer of Anaheim, and then from the floor. The meeting was at the cafeteria room of Tustin union high school, with approximately 80 members present.

It was the first meeting of the fall of the Tustin center, of which Fred L. Wilson, president, presided. Edward Hall was program chairman.

Cole said that the measure passed by the California legislative body taxing chain stores $500 for 10 units or over is not just, since it is in a measure class legislative, while Payne declared that the measure was passed to give the chain stores an opportunity to pay a just share of taxes.

Cole said one of the chief objections to chain store procedure had been overcome with federal legislation recently, that objection being a refund by large manufacturers to chain stores on their sales really removes the menace the stores presented to independent owners. He said the tax is discriminatory, unsound and adds to the present high cost of living.

S. M. Stanley presented the directors' report in the absence of Frank C. Latham. He said that two sites have been offered as a new home for the Orange County Farm Bureau, one at Seventeenth and Main street, Santa Ana, and another just inside the city limits on North Main street, Santa Ana.

Members were urged to attend the state and national convention of Farm Bureau in Pasadena in December.

A group of eight boys, in cowboy attire, from the federal recreational project, entertained with vocal and instrumental numbers. Preceding the program, a potluck supper was served at 6:30 o'clock under the supervision of Messrs. and Mesdames Leon Landwehr, Guy H. Christian, W. W. Tantlinger, L. R. Stearns and Mrs. E. L. Enstis.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KAY DUNN, pretty young nurse, is hired as a stewardess on Overland Airways and, the same day, meets TED GRAHAM, veteran pilot who flies the Trans-Pacific route.

Kay is assigned to the western division of the service. MONTE BLAINE, apprentice pilot, pays her marked attentions. Monte is a daring, romantic, but Kay is more interested in Ted. She and DICKIE, Ted's adopted 7-year-old son, become close friends.

Ted leaves on a flight across the Pacific. Monte and RALPH BANGS, another pilot, call at Kay's apartment one evening, decide to hold a house warming. DORIS LEON, stewardess, and close friend of Kay's, arrives, announcing that land planes are grounded because of fog.

Other guests come later. Though the evening passes easily, Kay thinks of Ted over the Pacific and is worried.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

KAY knew that two things stood above all else in Ted Graham's life—his adopted son, Dickie, and his job. And she knew, too, that she had come to idolize and to love Ted Graham.

While Ted was away on the Pacific flight, the other pilots kidded Kay mercilessly. Ted, they said, was the last man in the world to whom a girl should lose her heart. They all had heard him say, over and over, that romance, for him, was behind. He was never going to fall in love again.

Then he returned.

He came down out of the skies, after two weeks of gazing at the blue Pacific, and the first person he saw on shore was Kay Dunn. Dickie was at her side, trim in his grey military uniform.

It seemed so natural that the pair should be there, waiting for him. To Ted Graham's disciplined mind it seemed well-ordered, exactly right.

Kay sensed this and, for some reason she could not have explained, she felt annoyed that he should accept the incident in such a matter-of-fact way. She had gone to the military school to get Dickie, had secured leave for him to come to meet his father. Kay thought that Ted should have been thrilled at this reception.

It was Dickie who replied for her. "Pal lives here now, and works. Right on the beach near us. I had dinner with her almost every night during the holidays." Ted looked at the girl a moment, then said quietly, "I think ing so popular under Hawkins as instructor that boys had to be turned away from the classes this year. He announced the Orange County Forum meetings in Placentia Monday nights, and introduced Mrs. E. White, who talked on the forum setup in Orange county.

A vote of the membership indicated a desire to hold meetings each second Thursday of the month.

WOMAN'S CLUB CHANGES NAME

MIDWAY CITY, Sept. 18.—The Woman's Society of the Midway City Community church automatically changed its name to the "Woman's Missionary Society," through the vote to take up the mission work with mission study, a feature of each meeting hereafter, at the meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Kingsbury. The mission study book on the subject of women of the Congo, "Congo Crosses," was chosen for study, one chapter to be studied for each meeting and a review of that chapter to be given by an appointed leader at the meetings.

The annual fall carnival of the society was set for the vining of Tuesday, November 10. This will be at the Woman's clubhouse and in charge of arrangements of carnival features, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. R. O. Pritchard and Mrs. Cleo Hazard were appointed, while Mrs. Boyd Fury will be in charge of the sale of sandwiches and pie.

A surprise handkerchief shower for Mrs. Clifford Jones, wife of the pastor of the church, who with Mr. Jones leaves within the week for a month's motor trip to their former home in Iowa, was given as a feature of the social hour which followed the business session. A missionary play was presented at this time by Mrs. Fred Foley and Miss Emmaetta Hart. "Questions and Answers" on the subject of missions, was also included on the program.

Present for the meeting and party were: Mrs. Clifford Jones, the honoree, Mrs. Fred Foley, Mrs. Beth Johnson, Mrs. Houghton, Mrs. Wayne Fury, Mrs. R. O. Pritchard, Mrs. John Stone, Mrs. Nellie Phelps, Mrs. A. E. Holley, Mrs. Cleo Hazard, Mrs. W. C. Wilson, Miss Emmaetta Hart, Mrs. Kingsbury.

you will like it better at the airport here. There's more life. Do you like the colony?"

"I adore them all," she told him. His eyes were searching hers steadily. "I thank you for looking after Dickie—during his holidays. I'm afraid Jerry lets him run wild. The Japanese boy who tends the house is supposed to look after him, but he doesn't."

"Sato doesn't cook as good as Kay, either," Dickie put in, and they both laughed.

Dickie went on, "I don't like the military school any more. I'd rather stay at home!"

"But all little boys have to go to school," Kay said.

"I could stay at home and go to day school," Dickie said, tearful. "I don't like to stay up in the barracks every night. It's cold. And dark."

Kay patted his head. "Now, that isn't being a big soldier. Brace up. Be brave."

"But I want to live at home," Dickie repeated. "I never had a home—like yours—with flowers in the windows and pretty curtains. There's nothing at the barracks but iron beds and bare walls."

Ted put a hand on the boy's shoulder and they walked toward the roadster.

THEY drove up the beach to Ted's little house on the shore. For a few moments they watched the other children playing games on the sand. Then Ted opened the door of the car. Sato came running out to greet them, his mouth in a toothy grin.

"It's almost 6; why don't you stay and have dinner with us?" Ted said to Kay.

"Yes!" Dickie said eagerly. "Yes! She can help Sato cook it better."

Kay cried out with gay laughter. Ted was apologetic.

"Dickie! You don't ask a lady to dinner and then tell her to go cook it."

"Dinner ready," the Japanese said, with his toothy grin reduced. "Pork and beans. Boss home from long trip. Me open six cans. Got coffee, too."

Ted turned the switch in the car. "I think we'll dine in a restaurant," he said, "as usual."

But Kay stepped out of the car. "Yes," she said. "You go to the corner grocery and buy a steak this big!" She spread her arms. "And all the trimmings—mushrooms, potatoes, tomatoes. Bring them back to the house here. And don't forget a brick of ice cream for Dickie."

She didn't wait for a reply. She went inside with Dickie at her heels. Ted looked after them,

WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS INITIAL FALL MEETING

COSTA MESA, Sept. 18.—The theme of the Friday Afternoon's first regular meeting of the fall was "The Old South," when they met in the Woman's clubhouse yesterday at a luncheon program. Mrs. Edith Cloyes, of Santa Ana, leading artist on the program was attired in a costume in vogue as of Civil war days. The song artist for the day, Mrs. Irma Huffman May sang songs of the old south and also several Irish melodies, and pianists, Mrs. Jack Colvin, past president of the Huntington Beach Woman's club, and Mrs. Marion Miller, vice president of the County Federation of Woman's clubs, gave instrumental numbers in keeping with the rest of the entertainment.

Mrs. May, accompanied by Mrs. Colvin, sang "Bonnie Blue Flag," McCarthy; a Civil war medley, and several Irish compositions.

smiling, then drove off toward the grocery.

Sato was pleased to have Kay in the kitchen.

"Steak velly good," he said. "Velly easy to cook. I put him in the stove, then I go out and sit in the sun. Pretty soon he is done. Sometime one hour. Sometime two hours."

IN a few minutes Ted was at the door again with the groceries. Kay didn't look up from the salad bowl. "Did you remember to buy butter?" she asked.

Ted beamed with pride. "Butter!" he said, holding out the package.

Kay inspected the steak skeptically, but found it to be of excellent quality. It was certainly large enough.

"I'm really hungry," Ted said. "Then take Dickie in the living room and tell him all about your flight from Manila," she said. "Sato and I will manage here in the kitchen."

When he hesitated, she said, "Please. Dickie has been dying to hear about your trip!"

Ted went then with Dickie, and she could hear the murmur of their voices. Dickie's high and shrill. Ted's voice quiet and full of that resolution that Kay so much admired.

She wanted, herself, to hear the details of the trip. She wanted to know what he had done in Honolulu, what was going on in Manila. She wanted to know what Ted had brought to Dickie.

She heard one loud cry of delight from the child and knew Ted had given him some present from one of those fabulous lands. Then she was busy for a few minutes with the steak, and heard nothing more.

When the steak was steaming on the huge platter and garnished with red and green, she turned and saw Ted, in the doorway of the kitchen, regarding her with a fervent smile.

Kay blushed. Her sleeves were rolled up and her face was damp from the heat.

"I must look a fright!" she said. "You'll give me a minute to—"

"I was just thinking what a marvelous person you really are," Ted said. "And how pretty you look. With that hair—"

"I know," she said. "It's red. Please don't poke fun at my crazy eyes. I was born with them. They weren't painted on."

Ted laughed.

Party Honors
Are Extended
Future Bride

In compliment to one of the autumn brides-elect, Miss Naomi Wheeler of Anaheim, was a charmingly appointed luncheon at which Miss Arden Murray entertained yesterday at her home on Irvine in ch. Miss Wheeler will wed Davis McDonald of Anaheim on Friday, October 2.

Members of the intimate little group assembled in her honor, were asked to find their places at the luncheon table by means of name cards tucked into snowy basket nut cups. The table was cool and lovely with its central arrangement of water lilies, reflected in a circular mirror as they once were mirrored in a pool. Tiny vases of lilies of the valley added the bridal touch at each place and were favors for the guests.

After-luncheon entertainment began with the embroidering of tea towels which were presented Miss Wheeler for her linen supply. An advertising guessing game created much amusement, and the party honoree was winner of first prize, with consolation gift awarded Miss Margie McDonald. As a culmination of the gay features, Miss Wheeler was blindfolded and led into an adjoining room. When the blindfold was removed, she found a handsome white table lamp, the gift of hostess and guests.

Miss Murray was assisted by her mother and sister, Mrs. O. A. Murray and Miss Lois Murray, who completed a guest list composed of Miss Wheeler, her mother, Mrs. Rena Wheeler, her fiancé's mother, Mrs. Robert R. McDonald, both of Anaheim; Miss Margie McDonald and Miss Faria Neil Clayton.

Original Manuscripts
Of Pegasus Writers
Follow One Theme

That plan of writing from a proposed quotation which proved so successful last year for Pegasus club members, will be continued this year, and was in operation Thursday when the first autumn meeting of the club was held with Mrs. J. B. Wolfe, 514 East Chestnut street.

Mrs. Wolfe instituted the new plan adopted by the club, of serving a desert course in advance of the program. With a wealth of Oriental treasures at her command, fruit of her many years of family life in China, she made this most interesting for her guests. Low tables of carved walnut were used, with Oriental tapers and china for serving jasmine tea with leeks and cakes.

Mrs. Frank was suggested a quotation from "Anthony Adverse" as program theme, and before the original contributions were read, outlined in interesting manner, the life of Hervey Allen, author of the famous book. Club contributions were largely poetic in form, including "Fruit" by Mrs. Walter Fodde; "A Life Philosophy" by Mrs. Earl Morris; "The Flower Girl" by Mrs. Malcolm Macadure; and "Dream On" by Mrs. George Bond.

Poetic imagery was apparent as well in the essay and short story forms such as that read by Mrs. Nelson Visol; "The Cross Roads" by Mrs. Frank Landdown; "My Three Generations" by Mrs. Wolfe; "Chains of Moonbeams and Stardust" by Mrs. Caleb Jackson, or the summarizing of the program theme by Mrs. Was in "Odd In-formation."

Members were interested in recent acceptance by "Westward" and "Circle" of poems by Mrs. Bond. Mrs. Rose Havelly, Mrs. C. C. Brummers present not giving program numbers, while guests entertained were Mrs. Wolfe's mother and uncle, Mrs. Alberta Husted and Caleb Jackson.

Barbecue Dinner Given
For Club Members
And Husbands

Party features beginning with a barbecue dinner were enjoyed by bridge club members and their husbands Thursday evening when they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Copeland, Palisades Road.

The outdoor grill was used in preparing the delicious dinner, which was served at a long table spread with a red-checked cloth. Fruit and vegetables in an effective arrangement contributed to an autumnal decorative motif.

The hosts and their guests adjourned indoors for an informal session of cards. The winners were Messrs. and Mesdames George Allison, Harry Riehl, Fred Perryman, William Swanson and the hosts, all of this community, and Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor of Laguna Beach.

The next meeting will be an afternoon affair in October, with Mrs. Steen as hostess.

Family Friends
Surprised With Marriage News

When Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dixon closed their mountain cabin at Cedar Pines park for the summer season and returned this week to their home at 1138 South Sycamore street, it was to be met with an unusual surprise. For during their absence their daughter, Miss Mabel Dixon, and her fiancé, Oscar Kitto, son of Mrs. Cora Kitto of West Third street, had stolen a march on their friends and were quietly married in Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, who had been anticipating the wedding as a formal affair to which their many friends would be bidden, accepted the news cheerfully, and announced it this week to Calumet camp and auxiliary, U. S. W. V., in which both are prominent.

The young people themselves preferred the quiet rites, so accompanied by Mr. Kitto's mother, motored to Riverside on July 22 where they exchanged their vows before the Rev. George Root, pastor of First Methodist Episcopal church of that city. Miss Dixon wore a blue-figured white frock with jacket and other dress accessories in red with the long shoulder spray of gardenias which Mr. Kitto selected for her.

From time to time through the succeeding weeks, the young people have gone to Cedar Pines park to vacation with the Dixons, but it was not until the end of the season that they revealed they were bride and groom. At present they are staying at the Dixon home until they find a suitable location.

Mr. Kitto is a graduate of Newport Harbor High school and his bride graduated from Santa Ana High school.

Daughters Investigate
Possibility
Of Erecting Clubhouse

Hopes that the local parlor of Native Daughters and Sons of the Golden West will have their own clubhouse in which to hold meetings of the not-too far distant future loomed today as Mrs. Marguerite Dickinson began her search of a suitable place for the proposed clubhouse.

Mrs. Dickinson was named on this very important committee Thursday afternoon by the president of Native Daughters, Mrs. W. H. Mize, who was hostess at a Thimble club meeting in her home on West Seventeenth street.

Covered-dish luncheon served at noon included as the main dish, a baked salmon provided by Mrs. Arthur Edwards, whose husband had been on a recent fishing trip. Spread with lace, the dining room table was appointed with pottery and centered with dahlias. Other bright-hued flowers were arranged throughout rooms of the home, where small tables had been placed for the convenience of guests during the luncheon interval.

Some of the group went outdoors to seek the shade of Deauville umbrellas while sewing during the afternoon. Members fashioned modish attire for the dolls which the organization will sell to raise money for its homeless children's project.

Mrs. Mary Walters, who will leave soon for a trip to Florida was showered with handkerchiefs during the afternoon. Mrs. Olive Seba won the door prize.

Mrs. Edwards invited the group to her home at Lake Arrowhead the latter part of October.

VACATION TRAVELS

Mrs. Will J. Lindsay, 801 East Third street, is home from an extensive stay in the east, where she took delivery on a new car in Detroit, and enjoyed a motor trip to various points of interest.

Mrs. Lindsay left Santa Ana the latter part of June in company with Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Connerly and Miss Marie Stewart of Santa Ana, who visited in Kansas and returned home in August. In Kansas City, Kans. Mrs. Lindsay met Mrs. W. H. Stevenson of Santa Ana, and the two continued to Detroit and up into Canada. In Williamsburg, Can. Mrs. Lindsay underwent treatment for arthritis with the famous Dr. Leck.

Mrs. Stephenson and Mrs. Lindsay parted in Indiana, where the former is remaining for a six months' visit, with plans to visit in Mississippi and return to Santa Ana in a year's time. Mrs. Lindsay visited with old school friends in St. Louis, Mo. and in Illinois, returning home by way of Siloam Springs, Ark. where she visited the John Brown school.

Armed Club
Climaxing this week's meeting of Armeses club in the home of Mrs. Charles Ryan, West Fourth street, was a pleasant refreshment interval during which members were joined by their Scout husbands.

Winners in bridge games of the evening were Mrs. Glenn Lyman and Mrs. Ora Jennings, who held high and low scores. Red roses were used in decorating for the affair.

In the group were Mesdames Elmer Smith, Ora Jennings, W. F. Curnutt, Glenn Lyman, Ray Graham, Charles Mitchell, C. A. Rousseau, C. E. Morse, J. F. McWilliams and the hostess.

The next club meeting will be held October 14 in the home of Mrs. Wright.

Faculty Bride
Wedded Simply
In Yuma Rites

Spurgeon school faculty boasts a charming bride member this year, Mrs. Donald W. Christie, who as Miss Eleanor Longworth, has taught in the Santa Ana school for the past eight years, and who was married just before the opening of the fall term.

It was on Tuesday, September 1, that Miss Longworth, the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Longworth, 907 West Broadway, Anaheim, and her fiancé, Donald W. Christie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Christie, of Washington, D. C., motored to Yuma, Ariz., for the quiet wedding service read by the Rev. Raymond Acheson, pastor of Yuma Presbyterian church. The simplicity they preferred was maintained even in the bride's attire, for she wore a floral printed crepe costume with dress accessories in harmonizing tones.

The young couple motored through the Southland for their honeymoon, returning to establish a home at 334 Normandy Place before Mr. Christie returned to his work in northern California, and his bride prepared for the resumption of her teaching career. Both of them are graduates of University of California at Los Angeles. Mrs. Christie had her preliminary schooling in Anaheim, which has been her home since childhood days.

Mr. Christie has arrived to spend the week-end here and at each Southland journey is presented to some of his bride's many friends and receives their congratulations. His father, Charles Christie, holds a responsible position in the national capital as associate chief of the civil division.
